TWO ROBBERS SLAIN, TWO WOUNDED AT STEELVILLE

Citizens' Posse, Given Tip on Plan to Loot Bank, Opens Fire After Four Enter Institution.

DRIVER OF CAR KILLED AT WHEEL

One of Holdup Men Escapes in Exchange of Shots in Which Two Bullets Hit a Resident.

By Long Distance Telephone to the Post-Dispatch.

STEELVILLE, Mo., March 20.—Two of five bank robbers were killed, two wounded and captured, and a fifth escaped, in an attempted robbery of the Farmers' Bank of Steelville, this afternoon, when citizens engaged them in a fight. One citizen was wounded in the exchange of shots.

The robbers drove up to the bank about 1:20 p. m. and four of them entered, leaving the driver at the wheel. The robbers ordered the cashier and the bookkeeper, the only employees in the bank, into the bank vault, and one of them scooped up a sack containing $1000 and plunged through a plate glass window in the rear. He started running, but fell dead from bullets fired by citizens across the street.

The driver of the car started up, but he proceeded only a short distance, when he crumpled dead over the wheel from bullets fired across the street. The other robbers ran out of the bank, shooting as they ran, but two of them shortly fell wounded.

Earlier in the day the Sheriff had observed the robbers' automobile, which bore a Missouri license, and had reported his suspicions to a number of merchants and officers of the town's two banks. As a result, there were a number of citizens armed and stationed at vantage points when the robbers drove up to the bank. In the ensuing fight, J. W. Schweiner was shot in both legs.

Judge Slama said that shortly after Bryan moved from Lincoln he bought Miami real estate valued at $35,000, which has now increased in value to a quarter of a million dollars. Additional purchases, he said, had increased the Bryan estate to $1,000,000.

4 PERSONS KILLED IN COLLISION OF M'KINLEY CARS

Unconfirmed Reports Put Number of Dead at Six—Injured Taken to Springfield Hospital.

Four persons are known to be dead and a number injured in a collision between an Illinois Traction passenger car and a line or work car at 1 p. m. today at Davis Siding, four miles south of Carlinville, Ill., and about 55 miles northeast of St. Louis. Unconfirmed reports placed the number of dead at six.

Two of the dead are William W. Beale of Staunton and J. H. Roberts of Carlinville, respectively. The other two known dead were passengers. They have not yet been identified in reports to the local or Springfield offices of the electric line.

One of the dead has been partially identified as a Carlinville boy named Robinson.

Relief Trains Sent

A long distance telephone message from Springfield stated that the injured were being taken on a relief train to St. John's Hospital there. Other relief trains carrying doctors and nurses were rushed to the scene from Carlinville and Gillespie, which is a few miles south of Davis Siding. The train from Springfield carried a wrecking crew and officials of the company.

All of the passengers were hurled from their seats by the impact and some were cut by flying glass. Some of the injured are believed to have been workmen on the line car. Reports vary as to the number and the extent and seriousness of their injuries. The following early list of more seriously injured was telephoned to the Post-Dispatch from Springfield:

Mrs. Robert Shannon, Virden, Ill.

Mrs. J. W. Clear and daughter, Maxine, Girard, Ill.

Mrs. William Meinicke, Gillespie.

Mrs. Julia Wadsworth, Plain View, Ill.

Mike Preston, Gary, Ind.

Mrs. Catherine Delaney, Carlinville.

Described as Head-on Reports to the local McKinley line offices described the collision as "head-on," but were not clear as to just how it occurred. Springfield dispatch stated the passenger train was traveling 20 miles an hour and indicated that the work train had failed to take the siding to let it pass.

The passenger car was train No. 7, a local out of Springfield, leaving for Staunton only. It left Springfield at 11 a. m.

How Confidence Men Got $60,000 From Missourian

Peter Sirbu of Hannibal Handed Money to New Friends With Plan to 'Beat' Stock Exchange.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 20.—Pete Sirbu of Hannibal, Mo., who handed friends of a week's acquaintance a package containing $60,000 that they might go into the "stock exchange" and return with millions, to be divided with him, spent most of today at Police Headquarters, where the officers were in touch with many points in this and adjoining states in the hope that the conspirators who left the city in an automobile a short time after the money was delivered to them might be apprehended.

The confidence game is the old story. Pete Sirbu came here with his wife. He had made about $100,000 and his health was not so good, so he retired.

Traveling alone on the summit of Hot Springs Mountain, Tuesday morning, March 10, he met a cordial stranger. The man gave him a long black pocketbook lying near the curb. He got out, and brought the book to the car.

There was about $50 in currency in the book. There were papers also. Hall said they should look over the papers and they did. Confidential correspondence, letters and telegrams revealed that a man by the name of Franklin was the owner of the book, and that he was a confidential agent of the "International Exchange," capitalized at $200,000,000, and which exchange knew all about stocks and bonds, when they would rise and fall, and had confidential agents all over the country breaking the smaller stock exchanges.

The correspondence also revealed that Franklin was to lose his job. Franklin's notice of later discharge was in the message.

An Excited Owner.

About that time a stranger came up, excited and apparently looking for something he had lost. Hall and Sirbu saw him. Hall suggested to Sirbu that they keep the book and the money, and say nothing. Sirbu wanted the stranger to have his pocketbook, so they called the stranger.

Franklin came to the car and was overjoyed. He would give them each a $1000 tip, but he didn't have the money in his pocketbook. Had they read the correspondence? Yes. And then they knew the story of who he was and the millions he was cleaning up for a big corporation—but he had been discharged, and all because he happened to drop

Mrs. Ezra Foster, 25 years old, who left her home at 711 North Seventh street, East St. Louis, Tuesday, to visit her parents at McLeansboro, was killed near there when the tornado struck Wednesday. It was reported today.

48 MEMBERS OF CINCINNATI POLICE FORCE INDICTED

Named by Special U. S. Grand Jury on Charges of Conspiring to Violate Dry Law.

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, O., March 20.—Cincinnati was stirred today when it became known that 48 members of the city's police force had been indicted by a special Federal grand jury on charges of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law. As a result of the indictments, the men named were suspended by Chief of Police Copelan, pending the outcome of their trials.

The indictments against the police are all based upon the conspiracy clause of the Federal penal code. It is said, they contain four separate counts. It is stated, charging the defendants with conspiracy to possess, to transport, to sell liquor and to maintain a nuisance. Fifteen of the men were in the first group arraigned today before Federal Judge Benson—W. Hough. Each answered "not guilty" as the judge read their names.

A. Lee Beatty, assistant United States District Attorney, asked that high bonds be required. Beatty, in a statement to the Court, said that graft was "king in this community." The poor violator was assessed a small sum and those who did a larger business paid accordingly for protection, he declared. Judge Hough fixed the bonds at $10,000.

The list included all detectives at the night chiefs force except Lieut. Eugene Weatherly; all members of the "flying squad," except Lieut. John Seeborn; one lieutenant, Audrey Houston; two sergeants, John Heidenreich and John Hoachim, and three members of the gambling squad of the day detective force.

It is said that almost 100 law enforcement officers and others were named in the indictments which resulted from a two months investigation into alleged graft and corruption in Cincinnati.

Roy A. Haynes, National Federal Prohibition Director, was expected to arrive in Cincinnati from Washington today to take part in the prosecution of the accused officers.

CONTRIBUTIONS POURING; DOCTORS AND NURSES RELIEVE SUFFERING

Property Damage Greatest Since the $500,000,000 Loss in Ohio Flood in March, 1913.

DEATH TOTAL AROUND 800, WITH 600 IN ILLINOIS

Murphysboro Reports Recovery of 175 Bodies—Missouri Death List Is 18—Southwestern Indiana Had From 80 to 100 Fatalities.

In five states today grief-stricken survivors are burying their dead—the harvest of Wednesday's devastating tornado, which in Illinois, Missouri, Indiana, Kentucky and Tennessee killed 800 or more persons.

Meanwhile, throughout America, the forces of relief are being mobilized. Contributions for the thousands of homeless poured in through a hundred channels to the Red Cross, which is directing the task of providing food and homes. Hundreds of volunteer doctors and nurses who arrived yesterday and through the night in the stricken towns are at work to alleviate suffering.

In temporary hospitals surgeons have performed major operations, often without the aid of anesthetics, while the collapse of light, water and gas facilities in many towns adds to the discomfort.

Today's figures indicate that the number of dead will not vary greatly from 800. There are approximately 3000 injured in hospitals and temporary hospitals. Countless thousands are homeless.

Estimates place the dead in Southern Illinois at 600. At Murphysboro 175 bodies have been recovered and it is estimated that the death list will reach 250. Estimates from Gorham, Ill., place the dead there at 90. At West Frankfort the fatalities numbered 110 and at De Soto 69. In Missouri 18 are listed as dead today.

Property damage is enormous. Red Cross workers say the loss is the greatest since the $500,000,000 Ohio Valley flood of 1913.

The Weather Bureau predicts freezing or above in the devastated region tonight; much colder tomorrow.

A train of eleven freight cars, loaded with army housing equipment for the devastated region, arrived today at Carbon-dale from Chicago, having been forwarded by the Army Quartermaster there. Included were thousands of tents, blankets, cooking utensils and camp stoves.

WIND-DRIVEN WALL OF WATER SWEEPED GORHAM WHERE 90 WERE KILLED

Like a great wall of smoke, driving before it white billows which appeared to be steam, but were in fact the water it had gathered to itself as it crossed the Mississippi River, the tornado struck Gorham, Ill., just three miles inland and 10 miles south of Murphysboro, killing about 90 persons in Gorham and immediate vicinity. Sixty-seven bodies have been recovered.

Until today no information was obtainable as to the details of the devastation there. The number of injured is not known, but 26 survivors are in St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis, and 50 more are being cared for at Cairo hospitals. At St. Mary's Hospital in East St. Louis today survivors told the Post-Dispatch vivid stories of how the tornado at 2:35 p. m. Wednesday wiped out the little village of 900, razed all but four of its buildings and almost completely wrecking those.

Within five minutes the tornado had passed and grief-stricken and terrified survivors were working madly under a shining sun, digging the dead and injured from tangled masses of debris.

From then until 8 p. m. they received no aid. The village doctor was injured and helpless. Rough home surgery bandaged the wounded and did its best to alleviate pain. From Grande Terre, at 8 p. m., two surgeons came by automobile. At 11 came aid from Chester. And at 1 a. m. five nurses from St. Mary's Hospital in East St. Louis reached the scene.

When the tornado struck the town 200 children from Chester and vicinity were gathered at the Community High School, a two-story brick structure with basement, that collapsed in the storm, killing and injuring at least 40 of them, according to survivors' estimates.

All morning, before the tornado it had rained. The day was dark and gloomy. The air was heavy. There was no wind. Then the drizzle increased. The heavens

TALES OF HEROISM AND STRANGE ESCAPES TOLD BY PEOPLE OF DE SOTO

TOWN GATHERS ITS DEAD FROM STORM DEBRIS

Remnants of Families Salvaging Belongings and Preparing to Bury Victims of Tornado.

INVALID BLOCKS WALL WITH BODY Helps Save Lives of Woman and Baby—Mother and Child, Blown Into Tree, Escape Unhurt.

By SAMUEL A. O'NEAL, A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DE SOTO, Ill., March 20.—Tales of individual heroism and tales of the same great tragedy which befell this little town of 200 inhabitants Wednesday afternoon, today are finding their way to the lips of maimed and homeless survivors as they gather the scattered remnants of their families, salvage what few belongings remain in the wreckage of their homes and prepare to bury their dead.

Along with these tales of horror, one hears also accounts of personal heroism and miraculous escapes—of an invalid paralytic who held up the hall of a home while his sister-in-law and her 7-day-old baby were being dragged from a bed underneath; of a 14-year-old schoolboy, himself injured, who worked for an hour helping dig out the victims after the tornado had brought down the school building upon 200 children, killing 15, and of a mother who clung to her baby as the two were blown into the top of a tree and then climbed down with it unhurt.

The list of dead here stands at 69 today while hundreds of workers dig in the ruins in search of other bodies. Most of those recovered lie in improvised morgues at Carbondale and Duquoin and 22 have been definitely identified. Today the formalities of a coroner's inquest will be held, but there will be no joint services and some of the dead will be sent to other points for burial.

200 In Hospitals. More than 200 seriously injured fill the hospitals in these same two neighboring cities. Some are hopelessly crushed about the head, others have slight chance of recovery. About half of these seriously injured are children who were caught in the crumbling walls of the school building. Only about a dozen of the 200 pupils escaped from that disaster without some form of injury.

Less seriously injured persons, who comprise a large part of the town's population, are being cared for in private homes and by the Red Cross, Salvation Army and other benevolent institutions.

The town itself is virtually obliterated. Only a dozen houses remain standing and all of these are damaged with roofs of porches missing. Piles of brick and timbers fill the streets, trees are split and uprooted. The scene resembles that of a World War battlefield, except that the victims are mostly women and children. Many of the men escaped through the fact that they were away from home, mostly at work in the coal mines, and were out of the tornado's path.

Sorrow and suffering reigned in De Soto Wednesday, but yesterday it reigned at Duquoin and Carbondale, where survivors were being cared for in private homes and by the Red Cross, Salvation Army and other benevolent institutions.

In some cases husbands found their wives in the morgue at Duquoin and those of their children at Carbondale. Some have not been found at all and the search has been turned to the farms and fields adjoining the town on the east.

Deputy Sheriff Missing. What became of Deputy Sheriff George Boland is still a mystery. When last seen by residents of De Soto, his body was about 50 feet in the air. It disappeared eastward across the railroad tracks in a cloud of wreckage.

Two more bodies—those of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Read, who were trapped in their general store on Main street—were found yesterday, and the discovery again spurred the search of ruins. The bodies were charred almost beyond recognition by the fire which followed the storm, but have been identified.

A traveling salesman who was in the store with them has not been seen since. Workers believe his body may still be in the debris.

A horrifying experience, typical of many during the storm, was that of John Bratcher, a section hand. He was at work with a section gang a few miles from the town when the tornado cloud appeared, followed by the roar of destruction. The men took shelter under a bank until it was over, but could see that De Soto and their 46 Known Dead in Town of 300; Tornado Hurlled Bodies as Far as Half Mile.

By ARTHUR H. SCHNEFF, A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

House Hurlled Around. The family of John Cummings, another section hand, had an almost miraculous escape. In the house were Mrs. Cummings, her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Eulalia Cummings, and 2-year-old baby, and Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Graham, relatives. Without warning, they said, they felt the house lifted from the ground. It was whirled around and dropped several feet from its foundation, but remained intact except for a shattered roof. They suffered no injuries except bruises from being hurled to the floor.

Frank Craig and his wife, Martha, and their five small children also escaped injury although their house was hurled down upon them. Two other children who were at school suffered bruises. When the storm broke, Mrs. Craig grabbed the baby and tried to run out, but was caught under a falling wall. When the tornado had passed she and the baby were both pulled out unhurt.

Mrs. Thelma Craig, a relative, was at the home of her father, Sam Bullard, with a baby 7 days old. She and the baby were saved by the heroism of William Craig, her brother-in-law, who also happened to be at the Bullard home. Although William Craig had suffered from paralysis for years and was virtually an invalid, he went to the rescue when the walls fell and supported one side of the frame room with his body until his sister-in-law and the baby were carried from a bed underneath. They suffered only slight bruises.

Carried Two Miles by Wind. Mrs. Luther Stanley and her 2-year-old daughter, Myrtle, also were through the worst of the carnage and emerged unhurt through a happy whim of chance. They were in their home, the baby asleep and Mrs. Stanley watching the approaching storm when houses began to fly through the air. In desperation the mother gathered the child in her arms and drew the father bed about them. When the storm was over they were found safe in a road 40 feet from where the house had stood. The wind had lifted them, feathered her body and then gently set them down, and the bed had protected them from falling bricks and timbers.

Fourteen-year-old Ruth Taylor's experience was fully as remarkable. She has not yet been able to explain how she was transported two miles from the school house where the storm caught her in its grasp. She remembered being seized and lifted aloft by the wind, but she remembered nothing more of what happened until she found herself wandering on the concrete road two miles out of town.

The escape of Mrs. Ida Barnett was equally spectacular. She was outside her home with her baby daughter when the tornado descended. She had just time to seize the child before she was lifted from the ground and hurled into the top of a nearby tree. Through it all she clung to the baby, however, and later climbed down with it safely.

But the experience of the Barnett family was typical of many. Where one member escaped death

46 Known Dead in Town of 300; Tornado Hurlled Bodies as Far as Half Mile.

PARRISH, Ill., March 20.—All that remains of the little town of Parrish, in Franklin County, is the church, a home and the schoolhouse, one-story frame structures, which the storm missed by apparently a few yards only.

Parrish, seven miles east of Benton, county seat, and two miles east of Logan, contained about 45 buildings, including the church, school, two stores and a garage. The population was about 300.

The number of deaths in Parrish and the immediate vicinity is at least 46, of which 38 bodies have been identified. This number includes some residents of Logan and Benton who were about Parrish at the time of the disaster.

Neither Benton nor Logan was struck, although the latter town, with a population of 1350, was within a half mile of the path of the tornado.

The injured number at least 100. Many of the injuries are of a critical nature and will probably prove fatal. No definite count of the injured can be obtained, because they are being taken care of not only at Logan and Benton, but at outlying farms and at Akin, Thompsonville and Eldorado.

Clung to Railroad Track. The tornado struck Parrish at about 3:15 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and was preceded, according to some of the survivors, by a thunder and a violent succession of lightning flashes.

Clarence Lowman, 30, who with his father-in-law, James Clem, 50, operates a general store in Parrish, was standing on the porch of the store just before the town was hit. He saw the whirling black funnel approaching from about a quarter of a mile away and shouted a warning to his father-in-law in the store. He then started for his house about two blocks away, but was overtaken by the storm. He threw himself on the railway bed, holding on to a rail to keep from being blown away. His hold was not broken, but the wind whipped him about unmercifully, and he is in the hospital at Benton in a serious condition with a broken shoulder, broken arm, broken ribs and possible fracture of the spine.

His house in the northwestern part of the town was the only dwelling spared. His wife, two children and a sister were in it at the time. His store was completely

LIST OF IDENTIFIED TORNADO VICTIMS

A list of victims of Wednesday's tornado, as compiled today at the time of going to press, is printed on pages 29 and succeeding pages in this issue of the Post-Dispatch.

Company's mine at Logan.

Going east from Logan over the winding muddy road toward Parrish, the first signs of the tornado are reached about a half mile out from there to Parrish—and beyond is a continual panorama of destruction. The road is lined with pieces of furniture, wagon wheels, clothing, bits of torn curtains and bedding, metal bedposts, dead fowls, trees, pieces of timber and parts of wrecked houses.

Only one house remains on the route and it sits askew on its foundation. At some places the wind swept the ground clean, leaving only a bare foundation and discolored patches of earth to show where farm buildings had once stood. Horses and cattle were gathered at what might have been the sight of a barn. Dead and crippled horses and cows were in the field and many of the beasts will probably perish from injuries and from neglect.

Grim Men and Women. Several wagons loaded with household goods and carrying grim men and women were passed on the road, on the way to the homes of friends or relatives. Parrish, except for the three buildings mentioned and a few crazily twisted houses, was flattened. A few trucks yesterday carted away what little there remained of household goods and stock from the stores—very little of which was worth saving.

Small parties of men and women searched through the wreckage and wandered over the muddy fields looking for missing relatives and friends.

Over the scene of disaster, the wreckage and the anxious searching parties, a bright sun from among blue skies and white clouds, smiled down ironically.

ANTI-TETANUS SERUM TAKEN TO STORM AREA BY PLANE

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 20.—Antitetanus serum—750 tubes, all that was available here—was sent to storm-torn Southern Illinois early today in an airplane in command of two army officers of Fort Benjamin Harrison.

Red Cross officers working at Carbondale and Murphysboro, Ill., and nearby hamlets, in appeals to the local organization, requested the serum sent as quickly as possible, so that it would be available.

Two army officers, Lieut. R. H. Stewart of Indianapolis and Harry Mills of Dayton, members of the Reserve Air Force, started the trip at daybreak, and expected to reach Carbondale, where the majority of the serum will be deposited for distribution three hours later.

Officers of the Eli Lilly & Co. drug manufacturers called their large staff into action last night and declared that by noon today they would have made up a sufficient supply to care for all the injured. Available supplies of the serum at Chicago and St. Louis were exhausted, the message from Carbondale says.

Children With Mother. There was a great crowd about the school. Children were screaming and crying. Mothers and fathers were silently weeping. But everybody was trying to dig out their own. I found my two children. They were hurt, but thank God, they were alive.

The two children are in St. Mary's Hospital with their mother.

Vivid Description of Disaster at Gorham, Ill.

Like the other victims, their faces are imbedded with splinters and sand blown deeply in by the force of the wind.

What happened at the school was told by Alice Summer, 14, also at St. Mary's Hospital.

"We were in a classroom and it suddenly got so dark we couldn't see. All the children rushed to the windows. Teacher was mad. She made us go back to our seats again. All that we could see at the windows was that it was black—like night almost."

"Then the wind struck the school. The walls seemed to fall in, all around us. Then the floor, at one end of the building gave away. It was like a giant's foot stepping down a cellar door. The little girl, who is suffering from a probable fracture of the skull, burst into tears."

"I can't tell you what happened then. I can't describe it. I can't bear to think about it. Children all about me were cut and bleeding. They cried and screamed. It was something awful. I had to close my eyes."

"Then we tried to get out. Some of us did succeed in getting loose and out from under the stuff that was piled over us. Then our fathers and mothers came and we got out."

From a house that was lifted from its foundation and hung in the branches of a nearby tree, Mrs. Alice Tomure, 20, a paralytic, was blown over a small hill and into a nearby cornfield. She escaped with her life, but her husband, George, aged 71, was fatally hurt. Her son, Paul, in the same room, escaped with a bad injury.

"I was lying in my bed," she said. "Paul was home and with his father stood at the window, watching the rain. Our house was on the edge of town. Just back of it was a little hill and across the hill a cornfield. At the back of the house was a big elm tree."

"It grew dark. The rain poured down. Then the wind struck us. I could feel it lift the house. It must have been raised 10 feet from the ground and was whirled right around the big elm tree. The branches stuck through the windows. Then there was a great splintering and cracking and the house fell outward. I felt myself going through the air. I was stunned and when I came to was lying in the cornfield across the hill. There is a little creek there and my feet were in the water. At my side lay my husband. I turned over to him. A great spike had been driven through his lip."

"I'm dying, Alice, dear," he said to me. And we laid there and prayed together."

Then Paul came and carried his father back to where he was left of our home was hanging in the branches of the elm. He came for me. And by the time I had been carried to my husband's side he was dead."

"I was like the whole world turning over and over, upside down," said Edna Forsee, daughter of Louis Forsee, a coal miner. She is in St. Mary's Hospital with a wrenched back.

"Otis and Mabel (her brother and sister) were in school," she said. "Papa came home at noon. It started to rain harder and then to hail. Papa and mamma started to pray and I knelt with them. Then the house swung around and there were silently weeping. But everybody was trying to dig out their own. I didn't know what to think. I just prayed."

80 OR MORE DEAD IN SOUTHWESTERN TIP OF INDIANA

Not a House Left Standing in Griffin, Where 38 Bodies Have Been Recovered.

By the Associated Press.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., March 20.—Eighty or more persons lost their lives in the tornado which swept the "Pocket," as the southwestern tip of Indiana is known, causing property damage running into the millions. The known dead: Griffin, 38 up to 50; Princeton, 21; Owensville, 14; Poseyville, 4; Milledale, 2.

Princeton's chief source of income are in ruins. The Southern Railway shops, employing 400 skilled mechanics, supported almost all the families. When operating at full capacity the H. J. Heins Ketchup Manufacturing plant employed 250 persons. Both were wrecked by Wednesday's storm.

Forty-four bodies have been taken from the ruins of Owensville. The Indiana Red Cross representative estimates the death list at Griffin will not exceed 50. The labor city is destroyed, according to reports.

465 Injured in Two Counties. Systematic work in the ruins at Griffin could not be attempted yesterday, but sufficient men and equipment reached the stricken city today. Thirty-eight bodies have been recovered. The number of injured in the half-mile-wide belt marking the tornado's course across Posey and Gibson counties is placed by relief workers and military authorities at 208 in Princeton, 200 at Griffin and 45 at Owensville.

The zone of destruction stretches across Princeton from west to east four blocks wide. Most of the homes in this section of the town were inhabited by working people, many of the 400 employees in the Southern Railway shops living there.

Not a House Left in Griffin. Not a house was left standing in Griffin, which felt the fury of the storm worse than any place in Indiana. Several persons trapped under debris there, were mangled when fire finished the work of destruction.

Two daughters of Harry Young, Illinois Central passenger agent, were killed in their home, where a smaller child, who at the time was in a next-door neighbor's home, was injured. The two girls were suffocated in a folding bed, where they took refuge when they heard the roar of the storm.

Mrs. William Price of Griffin, who was in a field, by the side of her 2-month-old son, William Jr., said she had just gone to the infant's crib when she saw the storm cloud. The baby was almost buried in her grasp when the wind whirled her and the child about. She held him and placed the child up, lifeless. The mother fell dead.

while the mother clung desperately to Charles Glenn, aged 2, and to the banisters of the stairs of the home, from which the wind was blowing. She escaped with her life, but her husband, George, aged 71, was fatally hurt. Her son, Paul, in the same room, escaped with a bad injury.

Six Bodies Are Recovered From Mine Pond—Family Clung to a Table When Storm Lifted House

By RICHARD G. BAUMHOFF, A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill., March 20.—It is a picture of devastation and desolation, but it has its brighter aspects.

The courage and fortitude of the severely injured, the stoicism of those who have lost loved ones, the stark bravery of some who literally have lost everything, and the calm fortitude of the entire community, which has turned despair aside and resolutely faced the future.

These things are even bigger than the terrible toll in Wednesday's violent upheaval of nature. One hundred and ten are dead here. Several hundred are injured, some dying, some maimed for life.

Today, the first shock had passed. Relief workers—Red Cross, Salvation Army, militiamen, volunteer nurses and doctors—were busily and efficiently engaged in their ministrations, most gratefully received, but the phase that most impressed the observer was the community's own efforts to help itself.

Militiamen Packed Streets. A call for volunteer grave diggers brought a willing response at the local lodge hall of the miners' union. Burial of the dead began today. The work of identifying the dead is proceeding. Bulletins, posted on the windows of the town, disclosed the names of the victims as they were known. Militiamen patrol the streets and guide traffic. Curious onlookers, coming in automobiles and trucks, have been turned away. The city is a grim business.

Cared for in homes throughout the town are some 25 children, some orphaned, some in babies. A 3-year-old boy is being cared for in the miners' hospital, while other workers have made a futile search for his parents.

A pond at Mine No. 18, near the town, was in the water. Three of the children and one woman were rescued yesterday afternoon from the debris of her wrecked home, where she had lain unconscious for nearly 24 hours.

Tales of suffering, mostly of miraculous escapes, mostly of agony, but occasionally with a revealing touch of humor, are numerous.

Family Clung to Table. Frank Bell and his wife and two small children were in their small home when the storm struck. "We hung on to the table," Bell said. "The house was lifted off the foundation and bumped down again. We weren't hurt."

Not so a woman of foreign birth, who was found crushed and broken. She was shrieking and crying at the while, pointing to the mass of ruins which had been her home. A rescue worker investigated and drew forth a baby buried under the woman's 5-day-old baby.

Ralph Johnson, a railroad fireman, was in his house with three small children. He seized the youngest, 9 months old, and buried several yards into a 12-foot ditch. Dazedly, he looked up the edge of the ditch. The other children suffered only bruises.

Mother Dead, Others Crippled. A laboring man, unkempt and haggard from suffering, stood in a hospital watching doctors searching over his child—a little, head-bowed girl, who had suffered a fractured skull and fractured leg. "Her mother," he said, "was unavailing. Her mother sobbed. A fellow worker put his arm about the father's shoulders and led him out."

A West Frankfort business man, who of the local voluntary work, was deposited in a church. At the man J. Mattingly, 9 months, Mary K. Nolan, 4; fractured arm; Owen Lunford, 18, body torn; Flossie Collier, 31; arm broken; Jessie Hunter, 18; Stella Collier, 22, crushed foot.

The known dead at Griffin, 28 up to 50; Princeton, 21; Owensville, 14; Poseyville, 5; Elizabethtown, 2.

Princeton's chief source of income are in ruins. The Southern Railway shops, employing 400 skilled mechanics, supported almost that many families. When operating at full capacity the H. J. Heinz Ketchup Manufacturing plant employed 250 persons. Both were wrecked by Wednesday's storm.

Fourteen bodies have been taken from the ruins of Owensville. The Indiana Red Cross representative estimates the death list at Griffin will not exceed 50. The latter city is destroyed, according to refugees.

465 Injured in Two Counties.

Systematic work in the ruins at Griffin could not be attempted yesterday, but sufficient men and equipment reached the stricken city today. Thirty-eight bodies have been recovered. The number of injured in the half-mile wide belt marking the tornado's course across Posey and Gibson counties is placed by relief workers and military authorities at 209 in Princeton, 200 at Griffin and 65 at Owensville.

The zone of destruction stretches across Princeton from west to east four blocks wide. Most of the homes in this section of the town were inhabited by working people, many of the 400 employees in the Southern Railway shops living there.

Not a House Left in Griffin.

Not a house was left standing in Griffin, which felt the fury of the storm worse than any place in Indiana. Several persons, trapped under the debris there, were cremated when fire finished the work of destruction.

Two daughters of Harry Young, Illinois Central passenger agent, were killed in their home, while a smaller child, who was at the home of the next-door neighbor, escaped injury. The two girls were suffocated in a room where they took refuge when they heard the roar of the storm.

Mrs. William Price of Griffin was found dead in a field, by the side of her 2-months-old son, William Jr. She had just gone to the infant's crib when she saw the storm cloud. The baby was almost under her grasp when the wind whirled it far from her into a field. She ran to him and picked the child up, lifeless. The mother fell dead.

While the mother clung desperately to Charles Glenn, aged 3, and to the banisters of the stairs of her home, from which the wind had blown the walls and roof away.

"It was on the second floor of the house when the storm came and gathered up the babies and started to the first floor," Mrs. Mattingly said. "It was just on the stairs when suddenly the storm seemed to fall out of the sky, and the roof fell, leaving the stairway standing, exposed."

Propped Under Baby.

"The wind had such force that I had to take both babies in one arm and grasp the banisters to keep from being blown away," the Norman woman was whistled from the grasp. I just sat on the stairs and bent over Charles Glenn to hold onto the baby I had left. Then the wind went down and I went downstairs. I couldn't hold up my head. I was so weak, and collapsed into a chair, left sitting there. Pretty soon along came the preacher, Lee Brown, with my baby in his arms. He had heard Norman crying in a pile of debris about 15 yards from the house. So I had my baby back."

The child, according to nurses at the hospital, has internal injuries. How serious is not known.

In all, there are 24 Gorham survivors in St. Mary's Hospital. The first group reached there at 11:40 a. m. yesterday; the second, numbering 11, at 8:20 p. m. Not since Wednesday morning had they had anything to eat.

The Gorham injured at St. Mary's Hospital are: Alice Sumner, 14; Wallace Sumner, 11; Mrs. Alice Thumore, 70; Ernestine Glidewell, 12; Emil Schimpf, 37; Mrs. J. C. Fox, 35; Pearl Forsee, 42; Catherine Glidewell, 14; Jewell Casey, 13; Mrs. Zora Mattingly, 46; Laura Mattingly, 11; head lacerations; Clara Mattingly, 14; internal injuries; Mrs. Wanda Mattingly, 21; Charles Glenn Mattingly, 3; Norman Mattingly, 9 months; Mrs. Mary K. Nolan, 47; fractured skull; Owen Lunsford, 18, body lacerations; Flossie Collier, 31; Cyrus M. Boardman, 63; Jessie Maestri, 22; Jessie Hunter, 18; Stella Clark, 25, crushed foot.

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill., March 20.—It is a picture of devastation and desolation, but it has its brighter aspects.

The courage and fortitude of the newly injured, the stoicism of those who have lost loved ones, the mark of bravery of some who literally have lost everything, and the calm fortitude of the entire community, which has turned despair into a resolute and determined future.

These things are even bigger than the terrible toll in Wednesday's violent upthral of nature. One hundred and ten are dead here. Several hundred are injured. Some are maimed for life.

Today, the first shock had passed. Relief workers—Red Cross, Salvation Army, militiamen, volunteer nurses and doctors—were busily and efficiently engaged in relief ministrations. Most gratefully received, but the phase that most impressed the observer was the community's own efforts to help itself.

Militiamen Patrol Streets.

A call for volunteer grave diggers brought a willing response at the local lodge hall of the miners' union. Burial of the dead began today. The work of identifying the dead is proceeding. Bulletins posted on the windows of the improved mortuaries, disclosed the names of the victims as they became known. Militiamen patrolled the streets and guide traffic. Curious seekers, coming in automobiles and they have been innumerable.

They are turned back. The city is small, the relief work is well organized. It is a grim business. Cared for in homes throughout the town are some 25 children. Some orphaned, some mere babies. A 4-year-old boy is being cared for in the miners' hospital, while relief workers have made a futile search for his parents.

In a pond at Mine No. 18, near Elwell, six bodies, three of them adults and one a woman, were recovered yesterday. Another woman was rescued yesterday afternoon from the debris of her wrecked home, where she had lain unconscious for nearly 24 hours. Her screams attracted rescue workers.

Tales of suffering, of heroism, of miraculous escape, mostly of tragedy, but occasionally with a relieving touch of humor, are numerous.

Testifies Regarding Wife's Affair With Cowans and How She Knew of Her Love for Dennistoun.

LONDON, March 20.—The climax of the Dennistoun case was reached when Almira, Dowager Countess of Carnarvon, gave evidence for her husband, Col. Ian Oswald Dennistoun, in the trial of the action brought by his former wife to recover money alleged to have been loaned before their divorce.

She entered the courtroom wearing a black hat, fur and a long black coat with white facings. She was accompanied by her son, the Earl of Carnarvon, who leaped to his feet, white-faced, later, when his mother gripped the rail of the witness box and seemed about to faint as she was questioned about her love for her husband.

At first in her testimony yesterday she was self-possessed and answered questions readily, sometimes showing amusement. But her nerves gave when her husband's lawyer, Sir Edward Marshall Hall, asked her about her relations with Dennistoun before their marriage.

"Are you very fond of Col. Dennistoun?" asked Hall.

Speaking slowly, with her eyes fixed on the chandelier, she answered in a clear voice: "I love him with all my heart, my love and my body."

"That is a solemn statement," commented her husband's counsel, Lady Carnarvon replied, this time in a low voice. "It is too sacred even to discuss."

Sways in Witness Box.

She swayed in the witness box and Hall cried: "She's going to faint. Go to her."

Her son started to make his way to the box, but Lady Carnarvon steadied herself and said: "I'm all right. Leave me alone."

She concluded her remarkable testimony without further signs of collapse.

Earlier in the day, Dennistoun, under cross-examination, had grown violently angry when badgered about having been supported by Lady Carnarvon while the late Earl of Carnarvon was still alive. There were several times between himself and Sir Ellis Hume Williams, counsel for his former wife, in which the Judge had to interfere.

"Did you receive from Lady Carnarvon between May, 1922, and the date of her husband's death, about £25,000 ($118,750)?" he was asked. "There or thereabouts," Dennistoun answered.

Q. It has been stated, Col. Dennistoun, that the £100,000 with which Lady Carnarvon provided you to bring into the marriage settlement was intended to preserve your dignity? A. Yes.

Q. Did you think that after you had accepted £20,000 and a flat from another man's wife you had much dignity left to preserve? Trembling and pale with rage, Col. Dennistoun shouted: "Sir, Ellis, I'm not even going to discuss that point with you. You can ask Lady Carnarvon herself."

The counsel pressed the question, notwithstanding, and Dennistoun declared challengingly: "You may think what you like, and the gentlemen of the jury may think what they like. My Lord, this is pure blackmail."

It was brought out, as the cross-examination progressed, that an American woman has been involved in a legal dispute with Dennistoun. His former wife's counsel asked: "Is the name on the piece of paper which was shown you and which was said to be that of an English girl, really the name of an American girl who had been troubling you with an action?"

"Yes," Dennistoun answered, "but the action was not pursued and the name did not come out."

Dense Crowds Outside Court.

The atmosphere of the courtroom was electric after the duel between Hume Williams and Dennistoun about Lady Carnarvon's support of him while the late Earl of Carnarvon still lived. When the Dowager Countess herself took the stand late in the afternoon, the small courtroom could hold no more persons. Dense crowds had assembled outside and blocked the streets when it was learned that Lady Carnarvon was defending her husband.

Lady Carnarvon said she first met Mrs. Dennistoun on the occasion of an operation of Gen. Sir John Cowans, in November, 1923. She said Cowans was an old friend of hers and had frequently visited her and the late Earl of Carnarvon.

She described how she ran a hospital during the war. When asked how much it cost her, she replied: "I dislike advertising myself, but if you want to know, it was £125,000 ($600,000)."

Q. To do that you had to sacrifice your mother's jewelry? A. I sold everything I had including two wonderful pearls.

Long Knew of Cowans' Affair.

Lady Carnarvon then said that as a friend of Gen. Cowans she knew for a long time of his affair with Mrs. Dennistoun. It took her five days, she said, to break the news to Mrs. Dennistoun that Cowans was dying. She continued: "Mrs. Dennistoun was very calm. She said: 'The General killed all the love I had for him a long time ago.'"

I begged her not to let the General know that, as he had only a short time to live."

"Is Mrs. Dennistoun a peculiarly fascinating woman—attractive to the last degree?" she was asked.

"Nobody can resist her charms when she chooses to show them at her best," Lady Carnarvon replied. "There never was anybody who ever entered my home who ever captivated the hearts of my family as she did. They were all her slaves."

"Nobody can resist her charms when she chooses to show them at her best," Lady Carnarvon replied. "There never was anybody who ever entered my home who ever captivated the hearts of my family as she did. They were all her slaves."

When questioned closely for details as to her knowledge of the relations between Cowans and Mrs. Dennistoun, Lady Carnarvon said Mrs. Dennistoun had told her how she made the Fitz Hotel in Paris change the General's room when it was placed next to hers.

Visited Her Room at 2 A. M.

"But she also told me the General visited her at 2 o'clock in the morning," she went on.

"That is sufficient," interjected counsel.

Lady Carnarvon testified that Mrs. Dennistoun stayed in her house in June, 1921, and afterward.

"She often used to talk to me about her husband," the witness said. "She always referred to him as 'Tiger.' She said he was an awfully sweet man, very kind, and a great gentleman, but as a husband an absolute washout."

"She told me repeatedly she never loved Col. Dennistoun as a wife, but that she had a great affection for him as a sister."

Interest reached its crest when counsel began to examine Lady Carnarvon regarding her relations with Dennistoun. She said she had met him many years ago, but had not seen him in 20 years when she met him in Paris three years ago.

"He was in a lamentable state," she said. "He looked like death. He was the thinnest, most emaciated creature possible. His clothes were shiny. He apparently had not had sufficient food to keep body and soul together. I contracted influenza, and was so ill at the Ritz Hotel that I became unconscious. He called a doctor."

Found Dennistoun in Attic.

"I saw him practically every day before I left, when he sent a message to say he was ill. I went to see him and found him in an attic listed between them. Lady Carnarvon replied:

"Mrs. Dennistoun was fully aware, inch by inch and step by step, of the growing friendship, ripening into affection and culminating in love. She knew everything. She encouraged the affection between us with all her might."

She had disapproved, she said, of the Colonel giving his wife any money.

"I argued with him and I hurt him. I told him it was not right," she said.

She also admitted she had objected to Dennistoun giving his wife presents.

Q. Was Col. Dennistoun still fond of his wife at that time? A. I had not a doubt of it. I never realized it was possible for any man to love a woman as Col. Dennistoun loved Mrs. Dennistoun.

Q. Were you jealous of Mrs. Dennistoun? A. Sir Edward, whether I was jealous or not jealous, I don't think any woman in the world could have been expected to do that.

Lady Carnarvon declared that any aspersions on her husband's character were abominable and wicked.

"He was a simple soul," she said. "That describes him absolutely. He was absolutely puffy in Mrs. Dennistoun's hands. He had no will. He was a mere rag."

Asked about the present action, she said: "I have consented to such a thing."

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 20.—The defense in the Dennistoun case rested today after Mrs. Dorothy Dennistoun had been recalled to testify regarding bills for dresses purchased in Paris.

The Court said it proposed to submit to the jury questions regarding the agreement which Mrs. Dennistoun said the Colonel made at the time of their divorce. These will include whether the agreement actually existed; whether it was collusive; whether both parties intended to give it legal effect, and whether any of its conditions had been already fulfilled. Arguments are expected to occupy today and part of Monday. There will be no session of the court tomorrow.

Norman Birckett, arguing for the defense, told the jury the action had been brought "because Dennistoun saw an opportunity of getting money from Col. Dennistoun, whom counsel described as 'about as weak and vacillating an infatuated man as this jury ever heard of or read of.'"

"Now that the story is out, the contention of the defendant that this was in plain terms, blackmail, will be abundantly justified."

Sir Edward Marshall-Hall, principal counsel for the defense, has been forced to retire from the case because of illness. It was announced this morning.

37 BODIES IDENTIFIED IN HAMILTON COUNTY ILLINOIS

About 200 Persons Injured—Millions of Dollars Devastated Through County.

McLEANSBORO, Ill., March 20.—There are 37 identified dead in Hamilton County and the fatalities may run as high as 50. About 200 persons were injured, a mile-wide strip was devastated through the county, the tornado entering at Macedonia and leaving at Efffield.

The emergency Red Cross hospital in the public library of this city is full, and many more injured persons are seeking admittance.

Gale Causes Damage In Buffalo.

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 20.—Eight lake cargo boats were torn from their winter moorings in Buffalo Harbor; a school building in the town of Wheatfield was unroofed and two uncompleted buildings in this city were flattened yesterday by a gale which whipped across the eastern shore of Lake Erie.

Murphysboro Turns to the Task of Burying Its Dead

bodies were lowered. Relatives, friends, all who would mourn, are attending the stricken, searching for the dead or snatching a few hours of exhausted sleep in the few shelters available.

A force of 40 men labored all day today digging graves and it was planned to bury 70 victims of the catastrophe before tonight. Sunday, when all the bodies have been recovered from the wreckage and the stricken in the hospitals have been cared for, Murphysboro will stop for a few hours for a general funeral service for the tornado victims.

It is estimated that 8000 persons are homeless here and the city, which Wednesday was one of the most progressive towns in this section of the State, is a mass of littered ruin.

The list of injured has mounted rapidly and all available room for the care of the stricken was being used. Almost 100 of the less serious surgical cases were rushed to Carbondale in automobiles and trucks.

In Murphysboro's only hospital, operated by the Catholic Sisters of St. Andrew, more than 200 serious surgical cases are being cared for in an institution with accommodations for only 40.

The hospital was literally jammed with the sick and the injured when the correspondent visited it yesterday. The supply of beds had been early exhausted, and cots had been hastily set up in the wards and halls. Finally mattresses and blankets were laid upon the floors to accommodate the stricken.

Fifty-two surgical patients were lying on mattresses on the floor of the basement laundry yesterday. Seven were accommodated in the sewing room. Three were in the basement boiler room and three were on cots placed in the shower bath compartment. The halls and corridors were crowded with the beds and pallets of the wounded.

Dying on Every Hand.

Everywhere one saw men, women and children who plainly had only a few hours to live, and some saw mangled heads and arms or heard the stertorous breathing of patients suffering from serious head injuries.

Three small children died yesterday on one mattress. All had broken necks and were pitifully mangled. Yesterday afternoon a man was found sitting on a bench in a closet at the hospital waiting for treatment. He was partially conscious, and an examination disclosed he had suffered a fractured skull. He had made his way to the hospital Wednesday night and had sat in the closet unnoticed for almost 20 hours.

The work of the sisters has approached the breaking point. When the storm hit Murphysboro part of the roof was ripped from the hospital building and a huge crack broke through the wall on one end of the building, letting in a deluge of rain.

The 16 sisters at the hospital began to prepare at once for the care of the injured and soon the stricken began to come, limping to the building for care or carried in on hastily improvised stretchers if they were more seriously stricken.

All through the night the sisters, assisted at the operating tables or moved the patients, many of them large men, from floor to floor to make room for others.

Operations by Candle Light.

The electric lights were out and haggard doctors, their sleeves rolled up, diagnosed injuries by candle light and performed the most serious of surgical operations. Amputations were necessary in many cases and some of them were performed virtually in the open in that part of the hospital building which had been shorn of its roof. Many operations were performed without use of an anesthetic.

In the crowded hours immediately following the devastation of the city the few physicians on hand resorted to amputation only in the cases requiring immediate attention. Last night, with physicians crowding into the city on every train, the augmented medical force found time to make a survey of victims who had suffered shattered limbs. Thirty-five additional amputations were performed during and after the survey. Many of the operations were necessary because there had not been adequate medical attention when the patients were brought into the rescue stations.

Included in the medical forces which came into the city yesterday were several nurses and five sisters from St. Louis hospitals.

Besides the injured at the hospital there are more than a hundred others in emergency hospitals at the Elks' Club, the City Hall and a few other buildings. Scores of doctors and nurses are on hand, including 14 physicians and eight nurses from the St. Louis City Hospital who arrived on the scene Wednesday with the first outside medical relief.

Serum Sent by Plane.

With the most serious of the emergency cases cared for medical forces were at work today on preventive measures to cut off the possibility of tetanus. The supply of anti-tetanus serum brought here Wednesday from St. Louis was exhausted today but the preventive work was carried on again today after arrival of a new supply. Still more serum is on the way here from Indianapolis by airplane.

Besides those who suffered injuries in the storm itself many workers have since been injured going through the debris in their search for wounded and dead. In addition to these, many who had suffered slight injuries in the tornado worked heroically in the ruins unmindful of their hurts.

Today an effort is being made to round up these two classes of injured and give them treatment to ward off the possibility of tetanus, blood poison or other infection.

The first of several consignments of tents arrived here last night from Springfield and parts of the stricken district which have been cleared were used for tent cities for the homeless. Some of the tents were ready for occupancy last night and in addition scores were accommodated for the night on two trains of 16 Pullmans each which were rushed here from Chicago and St. Louis by the Pullman Co. Each of the cars had a porter in charge and the usual accommodations given to train passengers were given to the grimy workers and tearful children who came to the trains for a few hours of rest.

Mayor Makes Appeal.

Mayor W. H. Wood last night made an appeal for tents, blankets, coats and bed and right clothing. Within an hour 250 cots were on the way from Cairo and other towns nearby were preparing to respond to the appeal.

"It's like a war zone in devastated France," Mayor Wood wired. "Too dark a picture of the situation cannot be painted."

The terrific wind leveled virtually every building in 100 squares in the heart of the city and the mounting glare of fire on the low black clouds that followed the storm told of the doom of 70 more blocks, most of them in the finest residence district of the town.

The power plant was wrecked and the water and light supply cut off. Darkness came with a quarter of the city still blazing and thousands of rescue workers laboring, where the fire allowed them, by the light of lanterns and torches.

With the water supply cut off there was no defense against the spreading flames except dynamite, and the thunder of the dynamite, the roar of torn timbers and the shouts of firemen added to the confusion which continued through the night. So it was that Mayor Wood compared the state of his stricken city to that of a war-torn town of France, a comparison that came to the mind of every former service man who viewed the scene of terror.

One of the conspicuous figures in the work of rescue was Chief of Police Joseph Boston, who toiled grimly through the night. When the tornado struck the town Wednesday Boston rushed to the school building to help rescue the children. The first child he found was his own. She had died in the crash of timbers and brick that came with the wind's terrific onslaught.

One of the leaders in the work of rescue was Isaac Levy, a lawyer, who was virtually in charge of the rescue forces Wednesday night and yesterday. Levy was trying a case in Union County when he heard of the tornado and hurried back to Murphysboro. He was in charge of Maj. Robert Davis, who has been in charge of the situation at Herrin on several occasions.

Militiamen Arrive.

Within a few hours after the tornado had struck, the Headquarters Company of the 134th Infantry, which has always been first on the scene in troubles in Williamson County, had been called together for the bodies of several little first graders who are missing.

"I heard the thing coming," he said. "There was a terrific roar of wind and the building began to rumble. I ran to the hall where the children had been called, 400 of them. I spoke to them and they were quite calm. The 10 teachers began to usher them from the building."

"I suppose half of them were outside when the tornado struck in its full fury. The building crumpled and came down with a terrible roar, crashing into the midst of the children at the door. As the same time the railroad shops across the way went down."

ing Its Dead
crash of timbers and brick that came with the wind's terrific onslaught.
One of the leaders in the work of rescue was Isaac Levy, a lawyer, who was virtually in charge of the rescue forces Wednesday night and yesterday. Levy was trying a case in Union County when he heard of the tornado and hurried back to Murphysboro. His new house, one of the finest in the city, was in ruins, but his wife and daughter were safe. Levy plunged at once into the organization of a rescue force and officials give him credit for the speed with which the work was carried on.
Milliamen Arrive.
Within a few hours after the tornado had struck, the Headquarters Company of the 134th Infantry which has always been first on the scene in troubles in Williamson County, had been called together at Carbondale, its home station, and hurried to Murphysboro. It was in charge of Maj. Robert W. Davis, who has been in charge of the situation at Herrin on several occasions.
Five students were killed when the wind ripped the Murphysboro High School to pieces and sent the roof crashing downward. Twelve or more students, it is estimated, lost their lives in the wreckage of four-grade schools.
Yesterday at the Longfellow School, J. E. Fischer, principal, was hurrying in the ruins of his school for the bodies of several little first graders who are missing.
"I heard the thing coming," he said. "There was a terrific roar of wind and the building began to rumble. I ran to the hall where the children had been called, 450 of them. I spoke to them and they were quite calm. The 10 teachers began to usher them from the building.
"I suppose half of them were outside when the tornado struck in its full fury. The building crumpled and came down with a terrible roar, crashing into the town. I spoke to them and they were quite calm. The 10 teachers began to usher them from the building.

Tales of Heroism and Escapes at De Soto

or injury, another member was less fortunate somewhere else, and in the final roundup of the missing
there was some tragedy to be encountered.

Four other children of Mrs.
Barnett were in the ill-fated school.
These were Herschel, 14; Tina May, 12; Marie, 9, and Elizabeth, 7.

When teachers cried out to their pupils to save their lives if they could; 7-year-old Elizabeth leaped out of a window with another little girl and escaped. Herschel crawled under a desk. He later emerged from the pile of debris to help extricate other sufferers despite his own injuries, and two of the dead he helped to find were his sisters, Tina May and Marie. Their skulls had been crushed by the falling bricks.

An instance revealing the agony experienced when families and friends were torn apart, knowing that one or the other later would be found among the dead, was related by Beulah Millhouse, also a survivor of the school debacle. She and 14-year-old Margaret Neal, fast friends, were sitting together when bricks began to rain upon them.
They grasped hands and started for the door but before they reached it, Beulah, who was leading the group, felt a tug at her hand. She looked back to see Margaret still alive but buried in wreckage almost up to her shoulders and hopelessly trapped. It was a case of one life or both. Beulah was forced to swallow her grief and hurry to Margaret's body was found and today is in the morgue at Carbondale.

Auto Driven on Ties

When Paul South, a 16-year-old high school student, found himself safe after the building's collapse, his first thought was of his mother. He ran to his home to find the house in splinters and his mother and sister buried in the ruins. The only survivor was his grandmother, Mrs. Mary Hipel, 76 years old, and she was seriously injured. Running to the hard road nearby, Paul commandeered a Ford coupe entering the town and drove it back to his home where he loaded in the grandmother and set out with her for Carbondale. The blocked highway forced him to drive half a mile of the distance over the ties of a railroad track, but he got the aged woman to the hospital in time to save her life. Physicians said today she would recover.

Today Paul told about his experience during the storm.

"I was standing against the south wall of the brick school building," he said. "It got dark and I heard a noise like a million railroad trains. The kids all around me started screaming and crying.
I prayed, but I didn't pray out loud. Then the bricks began to fall all around me and I opened my eyes and saw children being buried beneath the bricks. Some of them had their arms raised as the bricks fell and buried them.
The wall by which I was standing did not fall. When it was over two or three minutes, I crawled out and ran home."

"Going Like Express Train."
Mural Williams, who was in his home at De Soto with five other persons when the tornado broke,
said:

"It got dark and we could see the storm coming. It was going like an express train. Pretty soon the wind started to blow. The windows crashed and the furniture bartled to move about and started bouncing itself in the middle of the room. The walls caved in and we all crawled under the furniture.
My arm was broken. The rest were not hurt. Finally the house was blown away from over our heads.
Right after it was all over we felt

"LIKE GIANT FIST, TORNADO HIT DOWN ON GRIFFIN"

By the Associated Press.
PRINCETON, Ind., March 26.—
Like a giant black fist, which "hit down on top of Griffin," crushing
the town, was the graphic way Orval Carver, 17, who saw Wednesday's tornado devastate
Griffin, described the catastrophe.
Carver, on a hill a half mile away, watched the storm.

"It seemed to jump the hill, drop down on Griffin and then jump over the other hill," he related.
Two low ranges of hills lie to the west and east of Griffin.
Carver hurried into the stricken town and aided in the rescue work.
"Everything was strewn around, bodies, trees and houses," he said.
"In the Kokomoor restaurant we heard screams and cries. Take us out." It was on fire. We tried to reach them but the flames drove us back."

Lucille Stallings, 12, whose father and mother were killed at Griffin, was buried in the debris of a general merchandise store.
She escaped virtually unharmed.
"I went into Geo. Doll's store when the storm came," the girl said. "When it went down I was buried under a pile of bricks and wood but crawled out."

The storm snatched up Martha Brokaw, 9, and Viola Nuntzman, 10, while they played in the Brokaw yard at Princeton, and hurled them 200 yards away, where their bodies were found by rescue parties.

A school bus was blown over near Owensville, but none of the 16 occupants was hurt.

A pile of tin cans against which a score or more of girls were thrown probably saved their lives, according to F. F. Felts, superintendent of the H. J. Heinz catsup plant here.

"The girls were actually picked up, hurled through an open door against a stack of tin cans, which kept the roof from collapsing upon them," he said.

cold and could hardly breathe."

Possibly one of the most interesting experiences was that of Fred Weaver, an Illinois Central Railroad conductor. "I was driving my automobile near the Illinois Central tracks about one-half mile north of De Soto when the tornado came," he said. "I saw a freight train coming and then I noticed it was getting dark and saw the tornado coming. When I saw trees and other objects start flying, I into the air, carried across the street and smashed to pieces on the other side. When it was over I looked all around and could only see one man. He was Frank Hewitt, former station agent, and he was standing all alone out in an open space gazing up in the air in astonishment while parts of trees fell all about him. He wasn't hurt.
Then I looked toward the tracks again and here came a freight train. It was a freight train, and parts of buildings and other debris and I ran over and flagged the freight."

The quick thinking of O. A. Ross, a salesman for a Duquoin packing company, saved his own life and the lives of three other men when the De Soto butcher shop, from which they were viewing the approaching storm, collapsed. As the roaring tornado approached, Ross cried out: "Get in the icebox," and dashed for the same protection himself. Hardly had they entered when they heard the building pilling over them. Through all the bombardment the box remained intact and its inmates later were able to make their way out.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Richards, a young married couple, were standing on their front porch when they heard the roar of the oncoming tornado. They had time to seize the trunk of a small tree in the yard before the storm reached them. For several moments they were tossed and beaten like rags in a gale, but managed to keep their grip on the tree, then a flying approaching fender struck the sapling to the hard road nearby, cutting it off as cleanly as a woodman might have done with an ax.
R. R. Johnson, a fireman, em-played by the C. & E. L. Railroad was holding his 9-month-old son in his arms when he was blown up from his yard and carried several hundred feet before he dropped in a field. Neither father nor child were hurt, but suffered a scratch.

A mother and two small children, however, fared worse in the storm. They were in a room when the wind. Their bodies were found in a tree half a mile from their home.

All roads leading into the town yesterday were lined for two miles in all directions with the bodies of visitors. Traffic police were stationed every few feet throughout the place but no one was wounded. It was so great that it required hours to travel a mile, with charity workers stood by the kettles to receive contributions from the sufferers and few motes fused their appeals, a large sum being collected. At many places
the road, motor traffic was by horse-drawn wagons, and a few residents sought to escape what remained of the sonal household effects.

Many trunks and boxes were being collected. At many places
what once had been furniture was almost as great as great curiosity seekers as well as relatives sought to view bodies of the dead. Early in the morning officials closed morgue doors to all but persons who thought they identify some of the victims.
Property damage in De Soto expected to total about $100,000.
Although destruction was in proportion to the size of the town than in either Murphysboro or West Frankfort, most of homes were modest abodes of boring people. A man attempted to repair the roof on one of few remaining houses was the evidence of reconstruction in town today.

Telephone lines in the town are demolished. A Post-Dispatch reporter who sought to call office in St. Louis was forced to go to Tamarora, 25 miles west of De Soto, on one occasion, and Mount Vernon, 25 miles west another.

20 RIVER SERVICE BARGES

Craft to Draw Only 3 Feet 3 Inches, and Two Tonnage to Be Added to Fleet.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Brigadier-General T. Q. Ashburn, executive chairman of the Inland Waterways Corporation, which operates the Mississippi Warrior rivers barge line service, announced today that 12 firms of naval architects and shipbuilders were working on competitive designs for two towboats and 20 steel barges to be used on the Mississippi River between St. Louis and Memphis.

Construction of these boats,
funds for which were appropriated by the last Congress, will depend upon the decision of the United States Court of Appeals regarding the disposition of the so-called "Goltra barges," which the Government is seeking to recover from Edward F. Goltra of St.
Louis.

Ashburn explained that the new boats would be designed to draw only 3 feet 3 inches of water. The towboats now owned by the corporation, which draw 5 feet 6 inches when loaded, will be transferred below Memphis, where there is always a deep channel. Contracts for construction of the boats will be so worded as to provide a heavy penalty should the boats have a greater draft than expected. The towboats will be propelled by 1500 horse-power Diesel engines. A board of three experts, one from the board of ship engineering of the navy, one from the army engineers' office and the third, a civilian, will pass on the designs.

Should the Circuit Court award
the "Goltra barges" to the Waterways Corporation, construction of the new boats will be delayed for some months, Ashburn said. Last February, when 50,000 tons of freight were carried, was the best February in the barge line's history, Ashburn said.

Officers Confiscate Liquor
IN TWO RAIDS NEAR WELLSTON
Proprietors of Places Complained of by Women's Committee Freed on $1000 Bonds.

Constable George Roth and Deputies of Central Township, St. Louis County, last night raided two soft drink parlors in the vicinity of Wellston which were complained of by a committee of 20 women who were testified before the County Court at Clayton that the places were frequented by law-enforcement officers that antioxiating liquor was sold over the bar.

The officers arrested Charles Dion, owner, and George Angerer, bartender, on the first raid on Dion's place at Oak and Hamburger avenues, Darby Hill, where they confiscated five gallons of wine, one gallon of gin, 18 gallons of moonshine whiskey and 50 gallons of beer mash. At the place of Clark Walton, St. Charles Rock road and Carson road, the officers arrested Walton and confiscated five cases of beer, four pints of whisky and two gallons of wine.

All three were charged with possession of intoxicating liquor and released on $1000 bonds returnable before Justice of the Peace Stecker at Clayton next Tuesday.

SECOND INDICTMENT FOR TAX ASSESSMENT FRAUD

Property Owner Says He Arranged With Clerk in Assessor's Office to Save $200

A second indictment was returned yesterday by the grand jury against William P. Eiling, former chief clerk in the office of the City Tax Assessor. As in a previous indictment returned last week he is charged with fraud in connection with an assessment on the property of a taxpayer, the latest one being a charge of altering the assessment on the property of Henry Zeiss, 5419 South Broadway, from $2550 to $255.

Zeiss told the Circuit Attorney that he had an arrangement with Eiling to give him one-half of any saving effected by the reduction in valuation. The altered assessment meant a difference of approximately $200 to Zeiss, it was stated.

Eiling originally was indicted for bribery in tax alteration cases but this indictment was quashed on a technicality.

MURPHYSBORO TURNS TO TASK OF BURYING DEAD

with a crash, but the men who were left alive struggled from the wreckage and came running to the school, many of them bleeding from wounds.

They leaped into the wreckage of the school, literally tearing their hands to the bone in their efforts to help lift the wreckage from the little ones. Many of the children were saved that way, but 10 of them were dead. Others are still missing.

Not far from the school was the home of James W. Gibson, postmaster of Murphysboro, who was confined to his bed with rheumatism. Rescuers climbing through the ruins found him still in bed alive, but unable to move because of illness. A few feet from his bed lay the body of his wife, Etta, mangled almost beyond recognition.

The fire, raging over the ruins left by the storm, brought an extra note of horror to the catastrophe. Scores of men, women and children, pinned beneath piles of debris or so injured that they could not make their way to safety, had to lie helpless while the flames swept toward them. Confronted hands and twisted limbs offered mute evidence of their struggles to escape.

In other cases the victims were killed by the first fall of debris. Many of them were burned beyond recognition in the fire and the places where they were found were one of the important factors in their identification.

Many strange freaks were left by the tornado as reminders of its ruthless power. A large garage at Murphysboro was wrecked by the wind and its roof collapsed in such a manner that a touring car is sticking half way through the roof. Dr. A. R. Carter, Murphysboro physician, yesterday recovered a medicine case which was blown from his hands by the storm while he was returning from a call. The medicine case was found two miles from the point where it was snatched from him by the wind.

Jail Prisoners Safe.
Prisoners in the city jail were terror-stricken when the wind struck the city. From their cell windows they could see houses and buildings go down and at the height of the storm the wind seized the big iron flagpole in front of the jail and whipped it downward into a huge C. The jail building, however, was virtually unharmed.

In several instances frail cottages on the edge of town escaped the wind unscathed, while huge trees only a few hundred feet away were uprooted and splintered by the fury of the storm.

When the fire broke out an appeal for aid was made and in response the new fire truck of Hermin was rushed to Murphysboro, 27 miles away. Near Murphysboro the truck became mired in the mud, and while workers strove to free it, the fire swept down and raged through the town.

One of the houses wrecked by the storm was the new cottage of a miner which he had erected near the edge of town. The storm had reduced it to a heap of newly painted boards and a huddle of brick but in the middle of the wreckage, apparently unscratched, stands a brand new player piano. A funeral cortege was arriving at the new $55,000 Baptist Church when the storm burst. The tornado partially wrecked the structure and a mass of bricks and mortar was hurled down upon the hearse and

MURPHYSBORO

The automobiles of the procession. After the storm had cleared and the injured had been attended the funeral was held at another church.

Olin Hanson, one of the pupils who was buried in the wreckage of the Longfellow School, was rescued from the ruins by his mother. Olin, who is 10 years old, was near the door of the school when the crash came.

"There was another little boy near me," he said today. "I watched him while mamma was digging for me among the bricks. He didn't move any. I guess he was dead."

An aunt of Miss Agatha White, a school teacher, was seriously injured in a terrifying experience that came with the storm. The aunt was alone in the house when the tornado burst. The front of the house crashed in and she was blown through four rooms and into the back yard.

"I seized a tree and held on as I was hurled through the yard," she told physicians. "The wind seemed to whirl me around the tree like a pinwheel, but I held on until it died away."

Doctors said the muscles in her arms and legs were literally torn away by the terrific strain.

Labors 36 Hours to Save Child.

One of the unnamed heroes of the rescue work was a physician from Chicago, who labored through 36 hours to save the life of a little girl in the Elks' Club. Between tense moments at the operating table and at the bedside of other patients, the physician found time to make frequent visits to the bed of the child, who had suffered a fractured thigh bone and had contracted pneumonia from exposure. Thanks to the physician's tireless treatment of the child she was pronounced out of danger and after 36 hours of duty the doctor was finally persuaded to leave his post to sleep.

One of the tireless figures in the work here is Mrs. Edith Kerr of St. Louis, who has been asked by Dr. H. C. Jones to spare no expense or effort in finding little Helen Jones. Haggard from lack of sleep, Mrs. Kerr is still seeking the child. Apparently Helen escaped with her life. Her teacher and schoolmates have reported seeing her after the tornado had passed, but she has not yet been located by Mrs. Kerr.

Through the ruins today wander women and children not physically able to do the heavy rescue work. Scratching in the wreckage of their homes they bring forth pathetically useless belongings and carry them off to their new quarters in the tent city, in a box car on a siding or beneath some litter of debris that affords them shelter.

A child with a battered toy, a woman with an alarm clock, a few pots and pans, these are common sights in blighted Murphysboro. Workers are able to work for the first time today in the blackened wreckage of the Mobile and Ohio shops, which burned after the storm. It is expected that the ruins will yield the bodies of six to 10 men who were trapped when the building fell upon them.

BERLIN PAPER PRAISES
NEW AMERICAN ENVOY

By the Associated Press.—BERLIN, March 20.—"From Wheaton to Schurman; American Men of Learning as Ambassadors in Berlin," is the title of an article in today's Vossische Zeitung which lauds Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, who is to succeed Ambassador Houghton, as "the greatest contemporary American philosopher and philosophical historian."

Beginning with Henry Wheaton and extending through George Bancroft, Bayard Taylor, Andrew D. White and David Jayne Hill to Jacob Gould Schurman, America has from time to time sent leaders in intellectual life to Berlin. Henry Wheaton, charge d'affaires at Berlin from 1835 to 1837 and Ambassador from the latter year until 1845, is described by the Vossische Zeitung's writer as "a famous authority on international law who also has blazed the way in a number of other branches of jurisprudence."

Chicago Relief Goal Set at $500,000.

By the Associated Press.—CHICAGO, March 20.—Five hundred thousand dollars from Chicago for the relief of the tornado victims was the amount agreed on to be immediately collected by the committee appointed by Mayor Dwyer to provide ways and means to assist the stricken districts.

Sympathy Expressed in Rome: Pope Offers Prayers.

ROME, March 20.—News of the disastrous tornado in Middle Western America was received with deep distress here. Many anxious inquiries have been received at the American embassy and consulate from Americans touring in Italy or along the Mediterranean Coast. King Victor Emmanuel and Premier Mussolini have cabled expressions of sympathy to the United States. The Pope offered prayers for the sufferers, and ordered a message of sympathy sent to Monsignor Fagnoni-Biondi, the Apostolic Delegate in Washington.

Relief Call on Knights of Pythias. BENTON, Ill., March 20.—Pence B. Orr, of Joliet, grand chancellor of the Illinois Knights of Pythias, issued a proclamation here today calling upon all members of the order in the State to contribute for relief of tornado victims in Southern Illinois. Orr arrived here last night with Al Douglas of Springfield, grand keeper of the records and seals.

"FREE-FOR-ALL"Socialist Says Catholic Cardinals Have Fomented Discord Throughout the Nation.

By the Associated Press.—PARIS, March 20.—Free-for-all fights, such as probably have never before been seen in the chamber of Deputies, broke out this afternoon's session. The disturbance arose after Premier Herriot, in defending the Government's policy in religious matters, had said:

"We accept and welcome Christianity in its pure forms, but not the Christianity of bankers."

Herriot defended the Government's policy toward the clergy and its efforts to make the non-denominational laws effective in Alsace. Applying today to the intervention in the chamber on what attitude the Government would take toward the manifesto of the French Cardinals and Archbishops against the laws in question.

The Premier said there was nothing in the Government's declarations as to its policy seeking to bring about peace with religion. He said the opposition's charges of religious persecution.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

PARIS, March 20.—The recent manifesto of French Cardinals and archbishops calling on Catholics to refuse to obey "unjust laws" devoted against religion has been the subject of debate in the Chamber of Deputies.

One orator, Leon Berard, asserted yesterday that many extremists, eager to manifest their hostility toward the church, regard the manifesto almost as a provocation toward strengthening their campaign against religious freedom in France.

Their spokesman, Deputy Casale, a leading Radical Socialist, but nevertheless expressed himself in measured terms while placing on the Cardinals the entire responsibility for fomenting discord in the country. He said that lay teachers must be free to teach, and that above all else in the schools there must be free thought, and he challenged the Cardinals' statement that such schools "deceive children" or "pervert their wills."

He said that lay teachers taught the most difficult duties and the exercise of moral and physical courage.

Calls Strike a Scandal. Deputy Casale described the calling of the school children to strike a scandal and insisted that the Alsatian Catholics were unreasonable to object to interconfessional schools in Alsace. He said these schools were open to all children in France and did not prevent Catholic schools from existing at the same time.

As for the Cardinals' assertion that "politics must be subject to religion," he declared this is an attempt to return to the Middle Ages.

Berard, on the other hand, attacked the Government, which he claimed for reopening an era of religious strife by making the republic appear antireligious instead of tolerant of all religions.

Free Masonry Assailed. He asked the Government for respectful impartiality toward all faiths and concluded by reminding Premier Herriot that the reorganization of France is bound up with what of the whole world and cannot proceed without a spiritual truth.

Succeeding orators attacked the Government with more bitterness. Deputy Groussau declared that French legislation for 46 years had been transformed into a war against the church and that today free Masonry appears as the arch-enemy of religion.

Vaudry Dameron, Conservative, asserted the Catholics had no hostility toward the republic, but simply demanded equal liberty for all under laws.

LONDON, March 20.—A new movement to make Great Britain dry is reported by the Daily Express. A secret conference of 117 representatives representing 37 prohibition and temperance organizations was held a few days ago at London, the paper says, resulting in a decision to bury all differences and present a solid front to the enemy.
Straight prohibition is not the aim of the movement, but local option, and committees have been drafting a parliamentary bill to carry this end. This seems to be a preliminary step, however, the paper adds, as the conference included some temperance societies which openly oppose prohibition. Newspaper men were present from the meeting.

EAST ST. LOUIS OFFERS HOSPITALS FOR RELIEF

City Will Send Carloads of Supplies and Provisions to Stricken Area.

St. Louis has sent numerous surgeons and nurses into the devastated cyclone area, and East St. Louis has offered not only its two hospitals, but the Community House, the Y. M. C. A. and Almad Temple to care for the injured.

St. Mary's Hospital, in East St. Louis, received a consignment of injured today, which made a total of 50 in that hospital and reached the limit of its capacity. Deaconess Hospital has 12 and can care for but few more. Boy Scouts will serve as orderlies in the temporary hospitals.

A committee which yesterday toured the section laid waste to determine how East St. Louis could best assist reported today to the Relief Committee, of which A. C. Johnson, president of the First National Bank, is chairman. It is planned to send provisions, clothing and supplies into the stricken districts by the carload. Mayor Stephens issued a proclamation calling upon donors of such gifts to deliver them to W. C. Rhedemeyer, East St. Louis agent of the Illinois Central Railroad.

Hospital Supplies Sent.
Five nurses, an interne and a large quantity of hospital supplies, including bed linen, medicines and serums, were rushed to St. Andrew's Hospital at Murphysboro, Ill., yesterday from St. Anthony's Hospital, Grand boulevard and Chippewa street. Another shipment of supplies will be sent today.

St. Andrew's which is only a 50-bed institution, is crowded with more than 200 patients injured in the tornado which destroyed a large part of the town Wednesday. According to reports reached St. Anthony's, the sufferers are being housed in hallways, basements, supply rooms and all other quarters than afford shelter. Because of the lack of bedding, many are lying on the floors with scant covering. Since the storm, the institution has been without a water supply, electric lights and gas.

Special Train Sent.
The special train of 14 Pullmans which left East St. Louis on that railroad last night for relief in the storm area carried 19 nurses recruited from St. Louis hospitals and department stores. Those who went to Murphysboro were under direction of Miss Rose Snyder, who was a nurse at Base Hospital No. 21 in the World War.

First to arrive were the 14 internes and eight nurses who were sent from the city hospital Wednesday night. When they arrived the Murphysboro city hospital and the Elks' and Masonic halls were already crowded with sufferers. A large amount of antiseptic serum sent with them was soon exhausted and a new supply went out by the Illinois Central last night.

Bishop Joins in Work.
Bishop Henry Althoff and Monsignor J. H. Schlarman of the Belleville diocese, which includes territory devastated, joined in relief work immediately the cyclone's havoc was known. Monsignor Schlarman, in a telephone call to East St. Louis last night said that although the Catholic school in Murphysboro lost its roof, none of the children were injured.

Members and supplies of the Edwardsville Chapter of the Red Cross are ready for relief service, upon instructions received yesterday from State headquarters. The chapter is well supplied with first aid necessities.

"Every Resource for Relief," Missouri Pacific Order.
By the Associated Press. DENVER, Colo., March 28.—Orders that the Missouri Pacific Railroad utilize every resource in aiding the relief of the tornado-stricken areas of Missouri and Illinois were issued today by L. Warrington Baldwin, president of the system, who is here for a conference with the presidents of the Denver & Rio Grande and the Western Pacific railroads.

Contractor to Double Employees' Contributions for Relief.
George Sokol of 7069 Pershing avenue, contractor erecting a building at 5028-30 Gravois avenue, has asked each of the 25 or 30 men employed on the job to contribute, if possible, a half day's pay for storm relief through the Post-Dispatch, and agreed to double the total they give. Contributions will be taken tomorrow when the men are paid.

SINCLAIR'S OFFER FOR TEAPOT DOME BEST, BAIN SAYS

S. Mine Chief Asserts Mammoth Concern's Terms Were Far Better Than Any Other Proposal

URGED LEASE TO SAFEGUARD NAVY

Justifies That Texas Co. Informed Fall It Would Be Unable to Meet the Contract of Sinclair.

the Associated Press. CHEYENNE, Wyo., March 28.—The Teapot Dome lease annulment trial entered its final stage today when the defense plumed the last of its depositions and adjourned the calling of three or four witnesses to the stand before ending its case.

Barring unforeseen delay, the defense will rest at the close of the first session late today, and Federal Judge T. Blake Kennedy, before whom the legal battle for the possession of the big Wyoming oil reserve is being fought, will adjourn court over the week-end and hear other closing arguments, beginning Monday.

What witnesses will be called by Mammoth Oil Co. to defend its lease given it by Albert B. H. former Secretary of the Interior, is not known and Martin Littleton, chief of the defense counsel, thus far has declined to disclose their names.

The readings of the depositions of Dr. H. Foster Bain, director of the United States Bureau of Mines, resumed today.

His Offer Above Others. The deposition of Rear Admiral K. Robinson, head of the Navy Bureau of Engineering, was finished yesterday.

Like Robinson, Dr. Bain set forth belief that the Sinclair terms leasing Teapot Dome were far better than any other which could have been obtained by the Government.

Bain declared that in the latter part of October, 1921, a conference held between Secretary of the Interior Fall and E. C. Finney, assistant Interior Secretary, and Admiral Robinson, A. W. Ames, Bureau of Mines technical and himself, in that conference, he said, it was determined to lease Fall that drilling in the Salt Creek field adjacent to Teapot Dome was causing the latter to be mined, and that steps should be taken to protect the navy's interest.

It also was determined among naval officials, he said, that stripping oil or arrangements under which only offset drilling could be allowed, would serve as a temporary measure on other matters of leasing the navy's oil. More a partial leasing would have to be undertaken if the maximum range were reached, Bain said.

He testified he took no part in making the lease to Sinclair. Negotiations With Texas Co. Referring to preliminary negotiations with the Texas company leasing Teapot, Bain said that April 6, 1922, the day before the lease was signed, Fall received word from the Texas company that it would be unable to meet the terms offered by Sinclair.

After an exchange of telegrams between Fall and the Texas company, beginning April 1922, Fall told Bain, the latter said he (Fall) thought it of further use to negotiate with Sinclair.

Questioned as to the advantages of Sinclair offer over the proposals of other oil companies, Bain said the Sinclair plan offered protection against drainage, added facilities for handling production, granted storage equipment and exchange of crude oil for fuel of which the navy is said to have been in need at that time.

The latter part of Admiral Robinson's deposition dealt with details about the Sinclair lease. In place the Admiral was questioned as to whether he had told any of the Navy Denby that the lease connected with the Teapot Dome stood to risk their reputations in handling the matter, to which Robinson assented with the words: "It's hard to touch oil about being contaminated."

URGED LEASE TO SAFEGUARD NAVY

Justifies That Texas Co. Informed Fall It Would Be Unable to Meet the Contract of Sinclair.

By the Associated Press.
CHETENNE, Wyo., March 20.—
The Teapot Dome lease annulment trial entered its final stage today when the defense plunged into the last of its depositions and scheduled the calling of three or four witnesses to the stand before creating its case.

During unforeseen delay, the defense will rest at the close of the court session late today, and Federal Judge T. Blake Kennedy, before whom the legal battle for the annulment of the big Wyoming naval oil reserve is being fought,
will adjourn court over the weekend and hear the closing arguments beginning Monday.

What witnesses will be called by the Mammoth Oil Co. to defend its lease given it by Albert B.
Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, is not known and Martin
J. Littleton, chief of the defense counsel, thus far has declined to make known their names.

The readings of the depositions of Dr. H. Foster Bain, director of the United States Bureau of Mines, resumed today.

His offer of Advantages of Sinclair's offer Above Others.

The deposition of Rear Admiral
K. Robinson, head of the Navy Bureau of Engineering, was finished yesterday.

Like Robinson, Dr. Bain set forth his belief that the Sinclair terms for leasing Teapot Dome were far better than any other which could have been obtained by the Government.

Bain declared that in the latter part of October, 1921, a conference was held between Secretary of the Interior Fall and E. C. Pinney, Assistant Interior Secretary, and Rear Admiral Robinson, A. W. Am-strong, Bureau of Mines technician, and himself. In that conference, he said, it was determined that Fall that drilling in the Salt Lake field adjacent to Teapot Dome was causing the latter to be land, and that steps should be taken to protect the navy's interests.

It also was determined among Bureau officials, he said, that stripping or arrangements under which only effect drilling could be secured, would serve as a temporary measure only in the matter of securing the navy's oil. More than partial leasing would have to be undertaken if the maximum lease were reached, Bain said.

He testified he took no part in making the lease to Sinclair.

Negotiations With Texas Co.

Referring to preliminary negotiations with the Texas company for leasing Teapot, Bain said that on April 6, 1922, the day before the Sinclair lease was signed, Fall received word from the Texas company that it would be unable to meet the terms offered by Sinclair. After an exchange of telegrams between Fall and the Texas company, beginning April 1922, Fall told Bain, the latter said that he (Fall) thought it further up to negotiate with Sinclair.

Questioned as to the advantages of the Sinclair offer over the proposals of other oil companies, Bain said that the Sinclair plan offered protection against drainage, added facilities for handling production, granted storage equipment and exchange of crude oil for fuel of which the navy is said to be in need at that time.

The latter part of Admiral Robinson's deposition dealt with details about the Sinclair lease. In place the Admiral was questioned as to whether he had told any of the Navy Denby that anybody connected with the lease stood to risk their reputation in handling the matter, to which Robinson assented with the word: "It's hard to touch oil and being contaminated."

blonde 22-year-old Countess Luise

for a time engaged to the Countess and wrote her to "seek a connec-

Countess Esterhazy denied the charges and faced the judges with the statement that she is proud to be a Hungarian but denied trying restore the Hungarian frontiers.

The Story of "Boyd's Pledge-Worth Suits"

There are Hundreds of men who pay $60.00, $65.00 and $75.00 for their clothes—we have a generous share of this business. We intend to deserve more.

But there are thousands of men who pay only $35.00 for a Suit. We have a substantial share of this business—we want more!

To attract these thousands of new customers to our store, we decided to offer the best $35.00 Suit obtainable.

To make these Suits stand out from all others which sold at thirty-five dollars, we selected the name "Pledge-Worth," by which they would be known. To further protect our customers, "Pledge-Worth" is being trade-marked and can be used only by Boyd's.

"Pledge-Worth" is a significant name—for the "Pledge-Worth" label in a Suit is a pledge of its worth—A pledge that it will never be sold under thirty-five dollars—A pledge of good style—But chiefly, it is a pledge of your satisfaction or your money back!

About six months ago the first "Pledge-Worth Suits" were placed on sale. They cost us more than ordinary thirty-five-dollar Suits. We started with only a few. Since then the amazing results have more than justified their extra cost.

Now, this Spring, we have prepared the most remarkable and complete line of "Pledge-Worth Suits" we have ever shown at

RIGHT TO CRITICISE DEVICES IS UPHELD

Inventor Sued Magazine Which
on His Hook-Up.

The right of the press to tell the truth about radio circuits and devices has been upheld by a verdict rendered in a libel suit which was tried in the Federal Court of the Eastern District of New York in the case of Kaufman vs. Radio Broadcast. This is the first libel suit on record. It was the outcome of an article entitled "The Truth About Trick Circuits," published in the March, 1934, issue of that magazine, and was instituted by the originator of the "Kaufman circuit," who sued to recover $100,000 alleged damages due to publication of the article, which had characterized his hookup as the "goulash circuit."

It would have been very unfortunate for the radio public truth-telling had been penalized," said Arthur H. Lynch, editor of the radio magazine. "The public and the art of radio have already suffered enough on account of various radio exploitations which trade principally on the newness of radio, but which only succeed in adding confusion to the lay understanding of a scientific art. Consequently as publishers of an authoritative radio magazine which has merited and always hopes to merit the confidence of the public, we deem it our duty at all times to publish the truth about radio and thus elevate the art to the highest possible plane."

The circuit which was cited to illustrate what was meant by "trick circuits" was, in our opinion, and as we stated in the article, a hodge-podge arrangement of various coils and condensers which involved no new element of value nor constituted any improvement over the general type of regenerative circuit. This criticism of the circuit, it was claimed, diminished the sale of parts that went into the circuit, whereupon Mr. Kaufman instituted suit on the ground that his reputation had been harmed to such an extent that he was legally entitled to recover heavy damages.

The prompt action of the jury in deciding that no libel had been committed and the refusal of the Court to set aside the verdict were very important, not only from the standpoint of upholding the freedom of the press, but also from that of protecting the listener-in. There will probably always be people in the radio business devising and offering new arrangements of parts and disposing of such an assembly by making extravagant and unwarranted claims as to their novelty or merit. Often the average radio enthusiast is not able to judge of the accuracy of the claims put forward and, after having bought and tried to make work the devices so exploited, finds that he has wasted both his time and money. Therefore it has been and will continue to be, the aim of this magazine to criticize and expose all devices of doubtful merit, and if, after our careful analysis and truthful exposure of the lack of novelty or special value of a particular circuit or device, the "inventor" suffers loss of prestige or anticipated profits, he has only himself to blame for permitting the use of his name in connection with the sale of goods which cannot stand the test of honest criticism.

"Under no circumstances, however, do we wish to dampen the ardor of experimenters for every one knows that some of the best improvements in the art have come from such experimentation. Nor have we any fear that the policy of truth telling will be misinterpreted by either the radio experimenters or the radio listening public."

ROYAL FAMILY COMPETES IN JAPANESE POETRY CONTEST

Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch, TOKIO, Feb. 13.—More than 22,000 poems were submitted for the imperial poetry party, held recently at the palace in pursuance of a custom dating from most ancient days. The subject this year was "Mountain against sky," and the judges awarded the first and second honors to the following:

"I see Mount Horomuki at the end of a field where are fleecy, sheep-like scattered clouds."

The second award went to these lines:

"Excepting Mount Hira all peaks, including Great Hig and Small die, stand bold against the sky."

The royal family also were contributors, some of them as follows:

"Mount Fuji alone is white with snow, although the tops of other mountains melt in the blue of the sky."

THE EMPRESS.

"I would that posture of the world be like Mount Fuji, which stands bravely against the sky."

THE PRINCE REGENT.

"I see the high peak of Mount Fuji against the sky, as I look back, after worshipping the rising sun on the New Year day."

THE CROWN PRINCESS.

"I see clearly mountain after mountain, all clad with snow, ranging against the sky."

DOWAGER PRINCESS, HIGASHI FUSHIMI.

LAST OF DAUGHERTY'S
CHIEF AIDS RESIGNS

Rush Holland Quits as Assistant Attorney-General—Indication of Trust Prosecutions.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—The resignation of Assistant Attorney-General Rush Holland takes the last conspicuous figure associated with the Daugherty regime out of the Department of Justice.

Attorney-General Sargent starts with practically a clean slate in the matter of assistants, and the announcement that he means to enforce all the laws. This perhaps means that the trust cases that have been slumbering in the department so long are to be dusted off.

The Federal Trade Commission,
in which the complaints of violation of the laws against combinations in restraint of trade originate,
has not been satisfied with the cooperation extended by the Department of Justice. The Aluminum Co. of America, Secretary Mellon's corporation, was complained of six months ago, but no action has been taken. The alleged price fixing of gasoline is another of the heritages of the department.

The antitrust cases were in the hands of Assistant to the Attorney-General Seymour, who resigned Wednesday. That branch has been taken over by William J. Donovan, who is a vigorous person, which is possibly the strongest ground for the suspicion that this class of cases is to be laid hold of vigorously.

During the Senate debates over Charles Beecher Warren, who shook the dust of the capital from his feet yesterday, a lot was said about these cases. The charge that the administration looks with a lenient eye on the offenses involved will have to be met, for the breach between the executive and the progressive elements of his party, shown in the Warren business, is bound to assume importance in the congressional elections
next year, when the Republican majority in both houses is threatened.

The cases of the sugar beet companies, which formed so great a part of the Senate indictment of Warren, have not yet reached the Department of Justice, so for the present Sargent is spared possible embarrassment on that count.

The new Attorney-General had a busy day yesterday getting acquainted with his job. He was at his desk promptly at 9 o'clock and called all the assistant attorneys-general in, but this was an introduction party.

Then Sargent saw the newspaper reporters, told them a few football stories and reiterated his position that all laws looked alike to him.
Half an hour sufficed for lunch at the Metropolitan Club, where he met Secretary Hoover for the first time.

YOUTH ARRESTED AFTER BREAKING INTO HOUSE

He Says He Was Hungry and Was Seeking Money—Recently
Paroled From Boonville.

Charles Kirby, 18 years old, recently paroled from the Boonville Reformatory, was arrested yesterday in the basement of the home of William Lammert, 3749 Darby avenue, after police were called by neighbors who saw the youth break into the house.

Kirby told the police he was homeless, out of work and hungry and had gone into the Lammert home looking for money, intending to steal nothing else. He was sent to the reform school from Kansas City a year ago for carrying concealed weapons, he said. He is an orphan.

moved this morning from wrecked

TWO MEN GET $15 IN HOLDUP

Robbers Flee As Policeman Approaches Filling Station.

Two men described as negroes,
or white men with their faces blackened, held up Arthur E.
Johnson, manager of a Standard Oil filling station at 1019 South Jefferson avenue at 7:30 p. m. yesterday as a policeman was approaching within 150 feet of the station. They robbed the safe of $15 and then ran out when the one who stood guard at the door called. "Hurry, here comes a cop."

The policeman searched the neighborhood a few seconds later but failed to find any trace of the robbers.

Sympathy From Germany.

sonal message today to President

MARQUIS CURZON, LEADER OF HOUSE OF LORDS, DEAD

MEMBER OF WAR COALITION CABINET

Helped Negotiate Lausanne Treaty With Turkey, and for Seven Years Was Viceroy of India.

LONDON, March 20.—Death of the Marquis Curzon, 66, Lord President of the Council and former Foreign Secretary. The end came at 5:00 o'clock this morning after a fight against pneumonia, which developed following his operation of two weeks ago.

The Marquis was 66 years of age. The first intimation of the trouble came on March 15, when he collapsed while addressing a public dinner at Cambridge at which he was to have delivered a speech. The collapse was marked by faintness and a nose-bleed.

An operation was performed for this later in London, but the nature of the trouble was not given out. The regular medical bulletin regarding his condition, which stated that he was suffering from "bladder trouble," was given as the cause of his collapse. Other reports mentioned kidney trouble, but the physician in attendance did nothing to enlighten the public.

Lord Curzon for some time had not been in robust health, and from time to time had to cease work and take long periods of rest. He suffered some years ago from phlebitis and an attack of this two years ago alarmed his friends.

When the necessity for the operation was announced, his friends recognized that it would be serious for a man of his age and his condition. Nevertheless, Lord Curzon stood the ordeal better than had been expected. For some days the bulletins of the physicians announced that he was holding his own and even indicated a promise for recovery.

A marked change came, however, last Sunday, after a night and increasing weakness. Anxiety continually increased and last night those watching his progress at his home in Carlton House Terrace, were convinced that he was passing away.

Earl Curzon's career which was notable in many ways. Opinion necessarily is much divided with regard to the record of his acts of the Marquis, but it is conceded that whatever verdict history eventually passes upon him, it cannot be denied that he was a great statesman who served a large part of his life in service to his country—a service the demands of which it is believed, undoubtedly weakened his physique, which never was very strong.

The work of the Marquis in his country and the conservative party, of which he was one of the most able leaders, brought him many honors. His title of Marquisate becomes extinct through his death, he having no son to inherit them. His Baroncy Ravensdale, in the peerage of Ireland, passes to Lady Irene Curzon, daughter of his first wife, who was Mary Leiter of Chicago. Lady Irene thus becomes Baron Ravensdale.

Curzon's title of Viscount Beardsdale goes to his brother Francis Curzon, who was born 1845. The title of Viscount Beardsdale was inherited by Lord Curzon from his father.

Last Debate for Lords. The last public appearance of the Marquis Curzon was in the House of Lords on March 4, the day before he was taken ill in Cambridge. In replying to criticism leveled at Lord Wimborne against the Singapore naval base project, Curzon stated that the Government was fully committed to the project.

Curzon's Career in Parliament. Cabinet. Marquis Curzon held high office under the crown, but never became Prime Minister. Had he been 10 years earlier, he undoubtedly would have become Prime Minister when he came to the threshold of office in 1923, the day of no longer occupying the place of the Prime Minister no longer nominated from the aristocracy, but from the commons.

Lord Curzon was trained at Eton and Balliol College, Oxford. At the time he was president of the Union of all-embracing students' organizations. Upon quitting Oxford with honors, young Curzon polished

MARQUIS CURZON
LEADER OF HOUSE
OF LORDS, DEAD

MEMBER OF WAR COALITION CABINET

Helped Negotiate Lausanne Treaty With Turkey, and for Seven Years Viceroy of India.

By the Associated Press. LONDON, March 20.—Death today claimed Marquis Curzon, 66, leader of the House of Lords, former Foreign Secretary and member of the coalition cabinet.

The Marquis was 66 years old. The first intimation of the trouble came on March 19, when he collapsed while addressing a public dinner at Cambridge at which he was to have delivered a speech. The collapse was marked by faintness and a nose-bleed.

An operation was performed five days later in London, but the nature of the trouble was not given out. The regular medical bulletin regarding his condition, which failed to name the malady, but "bladder trouble" was generally given as the cause of his collapse. Other reports mentioned kidney trouble, but the physician in attendance did nothing to enlighten the public.

Lord Curzon for some time had not been in robust health, and from time to time had to cease work and take long periods of rest. He suffered some years ago from phlebitis and an attack of this two years ago alarmed his friends.

When the necessity for the operation was announced, his friends recognized that it would be serious for a man of his age and his condition. Nevertheless, Lord Curzon stood the ordeal better than had been expected. For some days the bulletins of the physicians announced that he was holding his own and even indicated a prospect for recovery.

A marked change came, however, last Sunday, after a bad night and increasing weakness. Anxiety continually increased, and last night those watching his progress at his home in Carlton House Terrace, were convinced that he was passing away.

Earl Curzon Becomes Extinct. Death came quietly, ending a career which was notable in many ways. Opinion necessarily is much divided with regard to the political acts of the Marquis, but it is conceded that whatever verdict history eventually passes upon him, it cannot be denied that he was a great statesman who spent a large part of his life in service to his country—a service the demands of which it is believed, undoubtedly weakened his physique, which never was very strong.

The work of the Marquis for his country and the conservative party, of which he was one of the most able leaders, brought him many honors. His title of Marquis and the Earldom of Kedleston became extinct through his death, he having no son to inherit them. His Barony of Ravensdale, in the peerage of Ireland, passes to Lady Irene Curzon, a daughter by his first wife, who was Mary Leiter of Chicago. "Lady Irene" thus becomes Baroness Ravensdale.

Curzon's title of Viscount of Scarsdale goes to his brother Francis Curzon, who was born in 1865. The title of Viscount of Scarsdale was inherited by Lord Curzon from his father.

Last Debate for Lords. The last public appearance of Marquis Curzon was in the House of Lords on March 4, the day before he was taken ill in Cambridge. Replying to criticism leveled at Lord Wimborne against the Singapore naval base project, Curzon indicated that the Government was fully committed to the project.

Curzon's Career in Parliament and Cabinet. Marquis Curzon held high office under the crown, but never became Prime Minister. Had he been born 19 years earlier, he undoubtedly would have become Prime Minister. When he came to the threshold of office in 1923, the day of noble ascendancy occupying the place had passed. Prime Ministers no longer were nominated from the aristocracy, but from the commons.

Lord Curzon was trained at Eton and Balliol College, Oxford. At Oxford he was president of the Union, an all-embracing students' organization. Upon quitting Oxford with high honors, young Curzon polished

LONDON, March 20.—Death today claimed Marquis Curzon of Kedleston, Lord President of the Council and former Foreign Secretary. The end came at 5:35 o'clock this morning after a fight against pneumonia which developed following his operation of two weeks ago.

The Marquis was 66 years of age. The first intimation of the break in his health came on March 5, when he collapsed while dressing for a public dinner at Cambridge, at which he was to have delivered a speech. The collapse was marked by faintness and a nasal hemorrhage.

Missed the Pinnacle of His Ambition

MARQUIS CURZON OF KEDLESTON.

Paper Issued One-Copy Edition to Cheer Curzon

Substituted Account of 'Improvement' for Grave Bulletins Concerning Him in Regular Issue.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 20.—There is a story behind the death of Marquis Curzon this morning that is probably without precedent in British journalism.

For days the statesman had been lying on his sickbed, fully conscious, his mental faculties only the more alert because of the pain he was suffering. Every morning he appealed for his favorite newspaper and every morning his physicians, fearful of the effect their own published bulletins recording the gravity of his illness might have on their patient, were forced to refuse his request.

Yesterday it was seen he had entered upon the last phase of his heroic struggle with death. Only his indomitable will keeping off the enemy. The physicians, searching for every possible means to off his university education with travel.

Returning home in 1885 he entered politics as one of the private secretaries of Marquis Salisbury, then Prime Minister. He stood for Parliament immediately in South Derbyshire, but was defeated. Then turning to the constituency of the Southport division of Lancashire he was elected and continued to represent that division until 1898, when he was made a baron.

In his sixth year in the House of Commons, Curzon received a post in the government, being made Under-Secretary of State for India. At that time he was only 22 years old. His political achievements brought him promotion to Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs. A few months after he was made baron in 1898 he was sent to India as Viceroy and Governor-General, a post he retained until 1905.

In the years that followed, many honors were conferred upon him. Oxford made him Lord Chancellor in 1907 and the next year Glasgow made him Lord Rector. In 1911 the King raised him to a Viscount and the Royal Geographical Society elected him president, which office he filled for three years.

Lord Curzon was in the Lloyd George war coalition Cabinet and was made leader of the House of Lords in 1916. He continued in that position throughout the war and the reconstruction period. He became Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs in 1919 and continued in that office in the Bonar Law government.

Meanwhile he had risen two more steps in the peerage, to an Earldom and then to a Marquisate. He was at that time that his accumulation of honors operated against Lord Curzon in his ambition to become Prime Minister. When Bonar Law retired in 1923 there was besides Lord Curzon only one other man regarded as likely for the post, Stanley Baldwin.

Welshing in opposition to Curzon was the new tradition against appointing as Premier a Peer who could not meet attacks on the Government in the House of Commons. Hege, Baldwin, a Commoner, received the place.

Lord Curzon remained in the Foreign Office in the Baldwin Government. He went to Lausanne, led the allies in making their peace treaty with the Turks. The treaty let the Turks back into Europe. For this Lord Curzon was severely criticized.

Lord Curzon was born in Kedleston, Jan. 11, 1859, the eldest son of the Rev. Alfred Nathaniel Holdern Curzon, the fourth Baron of Soaradale. In 1895 he married Miss Mary Victoria Leiter, daughter of L. Z. Leiter of Chicago and Washington. She died in 1906, leaving three daughters. His second wife, whom he married in 1917, was Mrs. Grace Elvina Hinds Dugan, a daughter of J. Monroe Dugan, who had been United States Minister to Brazil, and the widow of Alfred Dugan of Buenos Aires.

The travels of Lord Curzon and the books they engendered were recognized with a gold medal by the Royal Geographical Society. Among his published volumes were "Russia in Central Asia," 1889; "Persia and the Persian Question," 1892; "Problems of the Far East," 1894; "Lord Curzon and Methods of Parliamentary Reform," 1909; "Modern Parliamentary Eloquence," 1913; "War Poems and Other Translations," 1915; "Subjects of the Day," 1915; "Tales of Travel," 1923.

SCHOOL AFFAIRS DISCUSSED BY
SUPT. MADDOX

Growth of System Attributed to Charter Limitations on Powers of the Board of Education.

SPEAKS BEFORE
PATRONS' ALLIANCE

Organization to Indorse Only Such Candidates for Board as Will Act in Nonpartisan Manner.

By the Associated Press.

An outline of the growth of the St. Louis school system and an explanation of the powers and duties of the Board of Education were made last night by John J. Maddox, Superintendent of Instruction, at the twenty-seventh annual banquet of the St. Louis Public School Patrons' Alliance, held at Hotel Chase.

In referring to the responsibilities of the board, Maddox pointed out that under the terms of the charter members must transact business in accordance with established laws and are not allowed to follow individual caprices and prejudices. This regulation, the speaker stated, has brought the school affairs of the city out of the chaos and ill repute prevailing prior to the granting of the charter into an organized, progressive system that has become a model for the country. More than 800 members attended the affair last night.

Citizens' Committee's Plans. Earlier in the day the Citizens' School Board Committee, which has a membership of 3000, through its Executive Committee, issued a statement setting out the aims and purposes of the organization in the selection of candidates to membership on the School Board, who will act in a nonpartisan manner.

Only men and women of the highest type and fitness, and who will serve without thought of political affiliations or selfish ends, will be inducted. Was the Citizens' Committee has no slate, and has chosen no "pet" candidates. It is gathering full information on all those who file, which will be printed and mailed to members. No consideration will be given to the candidate's religion or position in life. The action of this group, expressed by ballot, as to the candidates to sponsor and elect, will be obtained, and the five candidates receiving the highest number of votes will be recommended to the electorate.

Appeals for Mrs. Michael. Appeals were made yesterday for the support for Mrs. Michael in her campaign for re-election to the board for a term of six years, by John B. Edwards, former Chairman of the Board of Election Commissioners, managing Mrs. Michael's campaign, and by W. Palmer Clarkson, on the ground of her efficiency and knowledge of school affairs. Business men and women representing Parent-Teachers' Associations, Child Welfare Conservation Conference, and club and church societies are on Mrs. Michael's Campaign Committee.

Expected That Red Cross Quota of $100,000 for City Will Be Subscribed Soon.

Gathering of funds to help the stricken in the storm-swept area was well under way in St. Louis today, with the local chapter of the American Red Cross leading the work and several other organizations co-operating.

The Red Cross Citizens' Relief Committee, which is working to gather a $100,000 relief fund, held its second meeting at the Mercantile Trust Co. today to discuss plans for immediate action. There was every indication that the amount set would be quickly raised and that additional contributions would be made through other agencies.

At noon the committee had about $20,000 cash in hand, it was stated, and it was presumed that contributions aggregating as much more were on the way.

One of the first actions of the committee was to ask the Automobile Club of Missouri to urge its members to keep their machines out of the devastated sections. It was pointed out that the rush of spectators was crowding the roads and endangering slim food supplies as well as hampering the relief work.

Church Federation Offers Aid. An offer of aid by the Church Federation of St. Louis resulted in a request that each pastor ask for funds at Sunday's services, and a like request will be made of the Catholic churches. The management of the Empress Theater will stage a benefit performance at 11 p. m. Monday, the entire receipts to go to the Red Cross fund.

Postmaster Louis Alt suggested that mail carriers be given circulars to deliver while on their regular rounds. Telegrams from out of town offering financial aid were read and will be acted on. The Knights of Columbus announced a special meeting to raise funds would be held tomorrow.

Aid of the 100,000 children in the St. Louis public schools was enlisted by Supt. Maddox this afternoon, when, through the school principals, he asked the young folks to point out to their parents the great need for money for relief work. To each school principal Supt. Maddox sent this message:

"Principals are requested to tell their pupils this afternoon to call the attention of their parents to the public appeals for help for the storm sufferers, as found in the newspapers over the signature of the Red Cross. The Red Cross Committee is at work on relief measures, and says that money is the most imperative need in the present emergency. Money should be sent to Mr. Festus J. Ward, treasurer, St. Louis chapter, American Red Cross, care Mercantile Trust Co., St. Louis."

Special appeals for relief funds were issued also by Mayor Kiel and W. Palmer Clarkson, president of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce.

As was published yesterday, The Post-Dispatch is contributing $5000 to the fund and is receiving and acknowledging contributions. An appeal in behalf of the fund was broadcast by Post-Dispatch radio station KSD yesterday afternoon and last night.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat also has contributed $10,000, and has announced that it will receive contributions. Gov. Baker of Missouri, Gov. Small of Illinois and Mayor Stephens of East St. Louis have made official appeals for aid for the sufferers.

Clearing House Resolution. At a meeting of the St. Louis Clearing House Association yesterday the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"Realizing the disaster caused by the cyclone of last night, resulting in such terrible loss of life and property to the people of Missouri and Illinois, an expression of sympathy and regret on the part of this association is extended to the communities so seriously afflicted."

"It is the unanimous desire of the St. Louis Clearing House Association to not only extend sympathy and regret, but to be ready to offer help in a substantial way, if it is required."

"This association will recommend to its members a contribution of $5000 to the emergency relief fund under the management of the St. Louis Chapter of the American Red Cross."

"Further, that a copy of this resolution be sent to the American Red Cross and the Hon. Henry W. Kiel, Mayor of the City of St. Louis."

Democratic Members May Lift Caucus Agreement by Which They Are Bound to Oppose Boost.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 20.—Republican leaders in the House again are preparing to revive the administration tax increase bills, which have had an "on again, off again" career, following a conference yesterday with Gov. Baker, at which he directed that they be made an effort to get the bills passed by the House.

The Governor cracked the administration whip after his party leaders admitted were allowing the bills, already engrossed, to slumber at the foot of the heavily laden House calendar. Baker declared there was no excuse for allowing the bills to die without putting them to a test.

House Republicans in a caucus early this week virtually agreed to abandon the bills, and the majority members were released from their caucus agreement to support all of them. This action came after it was found impossible to hold a majority in line for all of the measures.

May Lift Caucus Rule. The administration bills increase the property levy for general State purposes from five to seven cents on the $100 assessed valuation, with an additional one cent levy to pay interest on the State's indebtedness to the public school funds, increase the State income tax rate 50 per cent, and the corporation franchise tax rate 50 per cent.

Many of the rural members are opposed to increasing the property tax rate, but are not averse to the income and corporation franchise increases, as virtually all those taxes are paid by the cities. On the other hand, city members insist the property levy should be increased if the tax on applying almost wholly to the cities are raised.

Democratic members of the House still are bound by a caucus agreement to oppose all tax-increase measures. But the caucus of the Republicans made the administration bills caucus measures. The Democratic caucus rule may be lifted since the Republicans have dropped the caucus agreement.

11 Appropriation Bills Passed. Ten appropriation bills, aggregating $84,754,615, were passed by the House last night. These bills now go to the Senate.

The content appropriation bill, carrying items totaling $7,738,284, was passed by the House this afternoon. Only one appropriation bill remains to be passed by the lower house. It provides $200,000 for a State Highway Department office building to be built and we have promised to meet their every requisition.

of Conversation Overheard After Killing of
W. J. Kring 4 Years Ago.

The retentive memory of a girl, now 12 years old, who recently related to police a conversation she heard four years ago between two men has resulted in the reopening of a police investigation of the unsolved murder, Sept. 10, 1931, of William J. Kring, 47 years old, a cigarmaker, of 2941A Greer avenue, who was found dead on a bench in Fairground Park with a bullet in his heart.

As a result of the investigation one man is under arrest and a patrolman of the Carr Street Station, who at the time of the murder was not in the police department, has been questioned. Both men deny any connection with the crime.

The man now held was arrested as a suspect following the killing, because a straw hat containing his initials, "W. T. D.," was reported by the police as having been found near the scene.

Details of the Murder.
The killing was done by a man described as wearing a dark suit, and who approached the bench on which Kring was sitting, about 7 p. m., fired one shot into Kring's heart and fled across the park.

Lieut. Walsh reported that Helen Goss, 12 years old, of 4125 Obeare avenue, recently informed him that on the day after the murder, the man now under arrest, the policeman, two women, her brother George, sister Mary and herself were in the kitchen of the Goss home, when the policeman took a revolver from his pocket, removed two empty shells and after asking Mary for oil to clean the weapon turned to the other man and said:

"Why didn't you take your own gun? Why did you jump over the bench? Why did you kill him?"

How New Facts Came Out.
Mrs. Agnes Goss, stepmother of the girl, was the original informant of Lieut. Walsh and had the girl tell her story. Mrs. Goss said her stepdaughter, Mary, now dead, had also told her who had murdered Kring and that it was one of the two men mentioned by little Helen. This man, Mrs. Goss said, had been attentive to Clara Goss, and Mary is said to have remarked she would rather see Clara in her grave than to marry this man. The reason Mrs. Goss gave for telling the story at this time was that her life recently had been threatened by the suspect now under arrest.

ANTI-BOLSHEVIST AWAITS DEPORTATION ON ELLIS ISLAND

Former Professor in Moscow University Overstayed Time Limit
Fixed on Entering U. S.
By the Associated Press
NEW YORK, March 20.—Alexis M. Moskvinnoff, former professor at a Moscow university and now American representative of the anti-Bolshevik organization, is being held on Ellis Island to await deportation action by the Department of Labor, it became known today. He was arrested March 5 and taken to the island on a Labor Department warrant charging that he overstayed the time limit fixed when he came to this country.

A hearing in the case was held Wednesday on Ellis Island, but the Labor Department at Washington has not announced its final decision. Prof. Moskvinnoff said he would leave the country voluntarily if the Government would grant permission. He arrived from France last May.

He explained that the anti-Russian Peasants' Association was formed by 60 peasant deputies to the first Russian Duma, or parliament, in 1906. The association, he said, "is inspired by the noble principles of American democracy formulated by Abraham Lincoln." It is said to be the strongest democratic and anti-Bolshevik organization in Russia at the present time.

WIDOWS' PENSIONS ADD TO BRITISH TAX BURDEN

Only Four Per Cent of Those Whose Lost Husbands in War Have Remarried.
Correspondence of the Associated Press.
LONDON, March 4.—British war widows seem loath to take unto themselves a husband for the second time and, because of this coyness, the British taxpayer has to suffer.

When the Ministry of Pensions submitted its budget in March, 1934, for the amount of money to be paid in pensions to war widows, it estimated that seven per cent of them would remarry during the year. Unfortunately the calculations were wrong, for, up to the present time, only four per cent have discarded their widows' weeds. Consequently the exchequer has had to grant an extra $10,000,000 to pay their pensions.

Post-Dispatch Wires Tornado Pictures to New York by Belin System

The World Prints Four Excellent Photographs of Scenes in Stricken Cities, Transmitted in Seven Minutes.

Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, March 20.—The World this morning prints four splendid tornado pictures taken by a staff photographer of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and transmitted by the Belin method from the office of the Post-Dispatch early last night. The World also prints a picture sent by the American Telegraph & Telephone Co. from Chicago. The Daily News, which has been exploiting the Teleplex system, had none by that method, but used on its front page an A. T. & T. picture. The American relied entirely on the A. T. & T. service.

photographs were taken and hurried back to St. Louis, by automobile, where sending records were made of them. "These were put on a telegraph sending machine by the Belin method in the Post-Dispatch office and in seven minutes from the time it started ticking, the first photograph was received on a film in The World office. The others followed. They were printed and developed in another 10 minutes. "Thus the photographs were flashed for The World's readers over 1053 miles, a distance it takes the fastest train 25 hours to travel."

W. D. SHEPHERD TO SEEK RELEASE ON BAIL TOMORROW

McClintock Heir, Indicted for Murder, Will Make Application at Preliminary Hearing. By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, March 20.—Attorneys for William D. Shepherd, held on an indictment charging him with the killing of his foster son, William Nelson McClintock, "millionaire orphan," with typhoid germs, prepared today for a fight to obtain his release on bail at his preliminary hearing tomorrow.

William Scott Stewart, chief of defense counsel, outlining his arguments, said he would endeavor to show that killing a man by giving him typhoid germs is not murder under Illinois law, which, he said, designates only certain specific methods of killing and does not include administration of disease germs.

State's attorneys said they would oppose the defense line of reasoning on the ground that if it were allowed to stand it would permit murder by any means not mentioned in the law. Meanwhile, prosecutors continued searching for a file of correspondence they said had passed between Shepherd and a private detective agency. They questioned Evan Jones, a telegraph operator, who was named by Miss Gladys Roberts, former stenographer of the agency, as having been given the correspondence before prosecutors raided the agency office. Another witness sought is a girl who several days ago called on the widow of Dr. Oscar Olson, brother of Harry Olson, Chief Justice of the Municipal Court, and instigator of the inquiry into McClintock's death. The girl warned Mrs. Olson to leave here, saying "It wouldn't be healthy" if she remained. Charles C. Faiman, jointly indicted with Shepherd, is still in custody of State's Attorney police today in a hotel and has not been formally arrested.

TEX RICKARD FOUND GUILTY IN FIGHT FILM CASE

He and Four Others Convicted of Conspiracy to Transport Dempsey-Carpentier Motion Pictures.

By the Associated Press.
TRENTON, N. J., March 19.—George L. (Tex) Rickard and four of his co-defendants in Federal Court, charged with conspiracy to transport prize fight films illegally, were found guilty by a jury last night. A sixth defendant, James Dougherty of Philadelphia, was acquitted.

The verdict was handed in after the jurors had been locked up for the night. Faced with the prospect of a night spent on hard benches, the jurors informed the bailiff after 11 o'clock that they had arrived at a verdict. Judge Bodine gave his consent by telephone for the acceptance of the verdict by the court clerk.

Those convicted, besides Rickard, were Fred C. Quimby, New York motion picture producer; Tedly Hayes of Los Angeles, former secretary to Jack Dempsey; Jasper C. (Jap) Muma, Washington and New York newspaper man, and Frank E. Flournoy, Madison Square Garden matchmaker. All were continued at liberty on their existing bail pending sentence next Tuesday.

Counts Against Rickard.
Rickard was found guilty on one count of conspiracy and on two counts of transportation of films of the Dempsey-Carpentier fight from New Jersey to New York and later to Chicago. Quimby and his corporation, Quimby, Inc., were found guilty of conspiracy on one count and on three counts charging transportation.

Hayes was found guilty on two counts, conspiracy and transportation; Muma on two counts charging illegal transportation and one count alleging conspiracy, and Flournoy on one count only, that of conspiracy. Dougherty, a manager of prize fighters, was found not guilty. At the conclusion of the Government's case but one charge, that of illegal transportation, remained against Dougherty.

On the conspiracy charge, the law provides a maximum penalty of two years imprisonment and a fine of $10,000, or both. For transportation of fight films, from one state into another, the defendants may be fined $1000 on each count.

Two of the defendants, Muma and Flournoy, were not in court when the verdict was returned. They had returned to New York at the time the jury was locked up. Rickard, Quimby, Hayes and Dougherty were found at a local hotel, called from their beds and hurried to the courtroom.

Aftermath of Senate Inquiry.
The conspiracy trial was an echo of some of the sensational proceedings brought out by the Wheeler senatorial committee last year, for it was at one of that body's sessions that a former Government agent gave testimony which resulted in the indictments against the six by a Federal grand jury at Newark last May.

The former Department of Justice agent, Gerald C. Holdridge, testified that shortly after the Dempsey-Carpentier fight in July, 1921, Muma apparently was the leader of a conspiracy to get certain high Government officials to maintain a "hands off" policy in the matter of interstate distribution of motion pictures of the fight.

Muma had told him, said Holdridge, that he had brought the film to Washington and shown it at the town home of his employer, Edward B. McLean, Washington publisher, at a "party" attended by the late President Harding, Secretary of State Hughes, Attorney-General Daugherty, a number of foreign Ambassadors and other Government officials.

Muma said, according to Holdridge, that Daugherty had discussed with others the possibility of exhibiting the picture generally. Holdridge said that Muma had given him to understand that William J. Burns, then director of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, was "standing in on the deal."

Films Shown in 22 States.
Quimby, the picture's distributor, had previously testified before the committee that he had shown the film in 22 states on the "understanding" that there would be no interference on the part of the Department of Justice.

Gaston B. Means, recently convicted in New York on charges of bootlegging and conspiracy to obstruct justice, told the Wheeler committee that he had given "large sums" to the late Jess Smith, Daugherty's friend, in payment for the justice department's "hands off" policy.

Means also testified that the plan was to have one exhibitor in each State where trouble arose in exhibiting the picture to appear as the "goat" and have a $1000 fine levied against him for violation of the law. This fine later was to be remitted to Quimby, he said, and the picture shown indiscriminately throughout that particular State without any further Government interference.

Louis, who conducted the Government's case, got into the trial records testimony that $7000 in such fines had been paid by Quimby. He also introduced testimony that Quimby had paid several thousands of dollars to Rickard, Flournoy and Muma out of the receipts from the picture's exhibition.

Start this new novel tonight! Finish it in three big bites

THERE ARE no long waits in COMPANION serials. Five years ago, the COMPANION blazed a new trail by publishing the best books by the best writers in three big bites.

In this way "So Big," by Edna Ferber, was published. And tonight you can begin Sophie Kerr's latest and best. Before you have finished the first long installment the next will be ready for you. Start now.

With what a catch in your throat, despite all its whimsical fun, you will read
"The Detour" by Ernest Poole, complete in this COMPANION—a short story in a million. And how you will enjoy the other seven fine stories in this great number.

It seems wonderful that any magazine can give you so much good reading, all in one number. Begin it today.

Are you medium height and thin?

There are fashions for everybody in this April number. But the COMPANION has another specialty—a page of fashions, not for everybody, but for a particular somebody. In this case, it's the woman who is thin and of medium height. Page 108.

Money, Money, Money!

The COMPANION has a money plan for purchasing a house, a money plan for marrying, a money plan for an automobile. Look at page 146 and you will find something of very personal interest to you. There is real money somewhere in the pages of every number.

On page 145, for example.
The dainty guest towels described here would cost you a fortune at the smart little shops. But all they need cost you is some linen and a few easy stitches.

Fashions; money; children; the practical affairs of home; the deep secret longings of the human heart; all these plus 75,000 words of good stories a month. These are

SWEDISH SHIP SINKS AFTER

COLLISION OFF DELAWARE

Crew Is Landed at Philadelphia by Norwegian Steamer.

PHILADELPHIA, March 20.—The Swedish steamer Tyra, Calmar, Cuba, for New York, with sugar, was sunk yesterday in a collision with the American tank steamer Ardmore, New York for Tampico, 45 miles southeast of the Delaware breakwater, and her crew was landed here today by the Norwegian steamer Falco, from Manzanillo.

Three Held After Bank Robbery. SPRINGFIELD, Mo., March 20.—After having been forced into the vault of the Bank of Thayer, Mo., yesterday, Clarence Davis, cashier, and John Smith, Mayor, escaped in time to see the car in which robbers leaped after obtaining $2000 disappear down the street. Three men, answering the description of the robbers, were arrested by local officers and were brought to Springfield. They are being held for investigation.

Account of Damage Suit Corrected.

In an account of a $5000 damage suit filed at Belleville by Mike Hopp, a former porter at the Century Drug Co., which appeared in Wednesday's issue of the Post-Dispatch, it was erroneously stated in the headline that a negro filed the suit. All parties to the action are white. Hopp alleged that he was scarred for life when an employee of the drug company threw a bottle of acid at his head on Jan. 1 last.

HE INTENDS TO SUE DIECKMAN

Defeated Mayoralty Candidate Calls on Another to Explain Remarks During Campaign.

MUST SETTLE SOME "ACCOUNTS," HE SAYS

Dieckman Had Repeatedly Charged That an Attempt Was Being Made "to Buy the City Hall."

George E. Dieckman, who charged in his recent unsuccessful campaign for the Republican mayoralty nomination that an attempt was being made to "buy the city hall," has received a letter from Louis P. Aloe, another unsuccessful aspirant, threatening legal action against him unless Dieckman satisfactorily explains "remarks" made during the heated Republican campaign.

As is known, Victor J. Miller, former President of the Police Board, won the nomination in a field of five candidates, although he was virtually without organizational support. Aloe, Dieckman, former Circuit Judge J. Hugo Grimm and Circuit Judge Robert W. Hall were his opponents.

Aloe's letter to Dieckman, dated March 16, follows:

"I am leaving the city tonight to be gone for a week, but desire to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 13th inst.

"When I return there are some accounts that you and I will have to settle with each other. Some of your remarks will now have to be explained or I shall undertake to institute such legal proceedings as the law affords by way of redress."

Dieckman, who received only 744 votes, was the storm center of the campaign. He attacked machine politics in every address and said he did not want the support of any organization politician. He stated in public addresses that he understood money was being sent here from New York and Chicago to be used in behalf of a certain candidate.

Charges Made by Dieckman. He made the specific charge that an attempt was being made "to buy the City Hall" in nearly every public appearance. Finally, he declared that the Republican fight for the nomination was so intense that the chances were largely in favor of "William L. Igou (the Democratic nominee) being the next Mayor." He said the $87,000,000 bond issue was "the prize of the campaign" and that the "gold rush" of contracting companies was on. The triumph of a machine candidate, he pointed out, would raise a presumption that it might not be expended with the interests of taxpayers solely at heart.

"Aloe's letter to me was in reply to one I sent him the morning of the primary," Dieckman said today. "I told him that in pursuance of an agreement we had made, that I had voted for him and that my ballot was No. 27 in his precinct. I said that I had believed Victor Miller would be nominated, but since it was a rainy day, he had a chance to win, and if he did, I proposed to do everything in my power to elect him."

"My statements in the campaign have been made and I stand by them. If the shoe fits, anyone who feels called upon may wear it. I am working now for the election of the party candidate, Victor J. Miller. He won fairly and as one of his opponents I cheerfully concede him the victory. Every Republican should work for his election."

Aloe is now in the Ouachita River section of Arkansas, out of reach of telegraph or other form of communication.

Before he left he said that his defeat was brought about by the expenditure of "Ku Klux Klan money brought here from Georgia" and added that he could not say he would support Miller until he had investigated the forces which brought about his nomination.

Dieckman said, in explanation of his vote for Aloe, that he and Aloe had agreed to vote for each other early in the campaign. He said he knew of no statement he had made which would lay him open to legal action by Aloe but was prepared to defend any suit that might be instituted.

IN BOY'S THROAT FIVE YEARS, REMOVED

KANSAS Lad Taken to Philadelphia for Bronchoscope Operation.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—For five years physicians and surgeons in the South and Middle West made every effort to cure Rodell Rowland and failed. Last week the boy, now 10 years old, boarded a train for his home town of Eldorado, Ark., and began the journey to Philadelphia to consult Dr. Chester Jackson, noted bronchoscopic specialist.
At 10 o'clock Monday morning "Roddy" entered the bronchoscope in clinic, in the Jefferson Hospital, and six minutes later was wheeled out, cured.

An hour later, grinning and chuckling, he was trying painfully to punch his name on the typewriter in the clinic office. The boy, who, despite his 10 years, weighs only 52 pounds, had swallowed a tack five years ago. Physicians treated him. His ribs were cut open in an effort to remove the tack. Everything was tried and everything failed. The operation included the sawing out of three of his ribs, the removal of tonsils and another surgical operation on the throat.

No surgery is required with the bronchoscope, which is the same method as used on baby Cletus Moore of St. Louis, who was rushed to Philadelphia last year and a tack removed from his lung.

"Belled Buzzard" Calls Again.

LEXINGTON, Ky.—The famous "belled buzzard," which has been

The huge bird was flying at a height of 500 feet and the tinkling of the bell was plainly audible. It was seen about a year ago near Lawrenceburg, Ky.

Constantine's Body to Florence.
By the Associated Press.

FLORENCE, March 26. — The body of ex-King Constantine was brought here yesterday by former Queen Sophie from Naples, where it was exhumed, and will be buried in the Greek orthodox church near the villa where the former Greek Queen and Princesses live. The ex-Princess Andrew and Christopher, who met former Queen Sophie at Rome, said the former Greek monarch will be buried in Florence "only provisionally, because the body of the King of Greece must rest in Hellenic soil."

DYER SAYS MILLER WAS NOT INDORSED BY KLAN

Congressman Declares Reports Are Being Circulated to Confuse Negro Voters.

Congressman L. C. Dyer, speaking last night before the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People at 3297 Pine street, said that Victor J. Miller, Republican nominee for Mayor, is the only candidate who has stated his position on the Ku Klux Klan and that he did not receive the endorsement of the Klan in the primary.

"This issue is now being injected into politics to confuse the colored voter," Dyer said. "Whenever a candidate is a Protestant, supporters of some opponent make the charge that he is a member of the Ku Klux Klan. This has only one purpose—to prejudice the voter."

"In the recent primary campaign among negroes, charged Miller with being a klan member. I have a ballot sent out by J. W. Stevens, secretary of the Klan here and a letter, which he wrote to members and another candidate, not Miller, was indorsed."

Dyer said later that a man who received the letter had given it to him. Stevens was not at his office today.

SERIES OF TORNADOES BURST FROM CYCLONE

Meteorologists Explain Wednesday's Catastrophe—Came Out of Southwest.

Government meteorologists agreed that not one tornado, but a series of tornadoes, striking here and there, as a vast area of low pressure swept across Missouri, Illinois and Indiana, caused the disaster Wednesday.

The low pressure area, called a cyclone by weather forecasters, might be compared to a swift-moving monster. The tornadoes were the lashings of its tail. A cyclone, therefore in proper usage of the word, is only the potentiality of danger, when it strikes it becomes a tornado or a series of tornadoes.

Out of Southwest. Wednesday's low-pressure area, or cyclone, came out of the southwest, moving in a northeasterly direction. Forecasters discovered it in Arkansas Tuesday night. To them it appeared as only a large low-pressure current, such as are constantly drifting across the United States, bringing weather changes. They knew that it might cause a tornado or it might not. Hundreds of cyclones pass without disaster. And there is no way of ascertaining when a tornado will burst from a cyclone.

So the various weather bureaus do not send out tornado warnings. It would be too much like crying "Wolf! Wolf!" when there is only one chance in a thousand that a tornado will break loose. Were they sure that any given cyclone would produce a tornado they could easily plot its course and warn those in the path of danger. Tornadoes almost invariably occur in the southeast quarter of a low pressure area. Barometric readings give accurately the center of a cyclone and from this it is an easy matter to determine the course of its southeast corner.

Path of the Storm. Montrose Hayes, director of the St. Louis Weather Bureau, today said the center of Wednesday's windstorm passed across Missouri at a point between Annapolis, one of the towns struck, and St. Louis. The path was about 150 miles wide and 500 miles long.

The southeast corner of the windstorm trailed above Annapolis. It was in this corner that trouble started. The rest of the low pressure area contained only moderate winds with warm cloudiness typical of such storms. The wind velocity at St. Louis was 35 miles an hour.

But over Annapolis at 1:15 p. m. the first tornado broke. Just what causes tornadoes is a matter of conjecture. It is known that they develop from cyclonic areas, presumably because of very uneven air pressures. Air tends to equalize itself, thus where the pressure becomes very low, cold air rushes in and swirls about like water run quickly into a bucket. The air in a tornado moves counter clockwise and progressively, as a spinning top travels. When such an air movement starts it usually gathers up clouds and whisks them into the vortex and this accounts for the funnel-shaped cloud which usually heralds a tornado.

Strikes Annapolis. Rushing down on Annapolis and the immediately surrounding country at tremendous velocity—buffeting, swirling, sucking and twisting the tornado damaged every building in town and took its toll of lives. Then it passed, or blew itself out.

Meanwhile the great storm area had drifted on. Its center still moved in a northeasterly direction and it dragged its destructive tail toward Murphysboro, Ill. At 2:30 p. m. a second tornado roared out of the sky and swooped down on Murphysboro. It was more violent than the first. Like the first, however, it was restricted to a narrow path as all tornadoes are. When it had spent its force against trees and buildings it blew away.

An hour and 15 minutes later a third tornado hit West Frankfort, passing in a narrow swath across one section of the city. It swept houses from their foundations, picked up articles of furniture and whirled them off, sucked out brick walls or smashed them in, displaying all the freaks associated with tornadoes. Then it, too, passed.

The great tail of the cyclone moved on. It lashed out at Kentucky and Tennessee towns and then whirled into Indiana.

Enters Indiana. Between 5 and 6 p. m. the destructive sector of the storm entered Harrison County, Ind., and in a series of blows piled up a death list and property losses. At 6 p. m. the tornadoes had passed and the low pressure area moving northward and eastward came to an end in New York.

Countless other low pressure areas have moved over this same course with the same possibilities for producing a tornado, but have passed without disaster. There is no way of telling what a low pressure area will do.

BONDS AND STOCKS VALUED AT $13,550 REPORTED STOLEN

A W. Reasfield, president of the Lindell Realty Co., with offices in the Federal Reserve Building, yesterday reported to the police the theft from a safe in his office of bonds and stocks valued at $13,550. The theft occurred after the office was closed. Wednesday evening the safe was not damaged.

Pigmy Mice for London Zoo.
Correspondence of the Associated Press.
LONDON, March 2.—The smallest animals of the London Zoo are a family of pigmy mice, which arrived recently from Gambia, in Western Africa. They are smaller than bumble bees, and a pair could easily set up housekeeping in an ordinary safety match box. While the pigmies were being shipped to London 15 of them escaped through a hole smaller than might be made by a slate pencil, and none of them was ever seen again.

TORNADO INSURANCE CLAIMS MAY RUN ABOVE $4,000,000

American Central Co., With Home Offices Here, Sends Four Men to Begin Adjustments.

The American Central Insurance Co., the only underwriters of fire and tornado policies with its home office in St. Louis, has sent four men to the Southern Illinois tornado area to begin the work of adjusting claims. They will establish headquarters at Carbondale and work from there through the devastated area.

Harold M. Hess, secretary of the company, stated today he could not estimate the amount of insurance claims which would be filed, but estimates from other sources run above $4,000,000.

"The effect of this disaster, so far as insurance is concerned, is much different than when Lorain, O., was wiped out last summer," Hess said. "Very few people carried tornado insurance at Lorain, while in the area affected by Wednesday's storm, tornado policies have had a considerable sale."

Hess explained that the ordinary fire policy does not protect against damage resulting from a tornado, but stated that his company had written considerable insurance with a combination tornado and fire clause in that section.

"I do not believe any of the tornado underwriters will have difficulty in meeting claims," Hess said. "The small insurance companies have stayed away from the tornado business for fear of just such disasters as this, and most of the tornado policies are handled by large concerns in the East doing a national business."

WIDOW GETS $25,000 VERDICT AT SECOND TRIAL OF SUIT

Mrs. Cora Pindexter's Husband, in Employ of Big Four, Was Killed Under Box Car.

A verdict of $25,000 damages for the death of her husband, was returned today in favor of Mrs. Cora Pindexter of Terre Haute, Ind., in her suit against the Big Four Railroad out of which grew disbarment proceedings last summer against her attorney, Charles Noell, who was cleared in a hearing before Judge Peary.

The first trial of the suit in December, 1923, was declared a mistrial when Earl Fredericks, an eye-witness, disappeared. Proceedings against Noell were based on a charge, made by railroad attorneys, that he had something to do with the disappearance. Fredericks testified at the hearing that Noell had nothing to do with it.

He testified at the trial concluded today that he was talking to Harry Pindexter, who was making repairs under a box car, when two other cars were shunted into it and caused his death, although he had set a signal indicating that that switch was not to be used.

FIVE-YEAR SENTENCE FOR HOLDUP IN DOCTOR'S OFFICE

James Ray, 22 Years Old, to Serve Term in Reformatory Instead of Prison.

James A. Ray, 22 years old, 5424 Vernon avenue, a railroad clerk, yesterday entered a plea of guilty in Circuit Judge Taylor's court to robbery in the first degree and was sentenced to serve five years in the Missouri penitentiary, which the court later changed to five years in the State Reformatory at Booneville.

On Dec. 12 last Ray was charged with entering the office of Dr. Thomas E. Rhodes, 923 Chemical Building, and holding him up at the point of a revolver, after which he took money and property valued at $425. He was later arrested and identified by Dr. Rhodes.

FORMER WIFE GETS CLAIM AGAINST CALHOUN ESTATE

Is Allowed $500 Rental on Home She Leased to Husband Prior to Divorce.

Mrs. Marie Calhoun was allowed a claim of $500 against the estate of the late David R. Calhoun, former president of the Ely & Walker Dry Goods Co., in the Clayton Probate Court yesterday by Judge Samuel Hodgdon.

The claim was for a month's rental on her home at Clayton and Log Cabin roads, St. Louis County, which she leased to her husband for the month of March, 1924. Mrs. Calhoun had secured a divorce from her husband two months ago. His death followed five weeks later. The Mercantile Trust Co., executor of the estate, waived objection to the claim.

DEVELOPMENT OF WATERWAYS
WILL AID RAILROADS, HE SAYS

Senator Brookhart Declares That Business of Illinois Central Increased After Barge Line Started.

CHICAGO, March 20.—Waterways developments will stimulate railroad business, Senator Smith W. Brookhart said last night in commenting on the reestablishment of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul.

"Since the Government barge line was established on the Mississippi," said the Senator, "business on the Illinois Central lines right alongside, instead of suffering from the competition, has increased greatly. Better and cheaper transportation develops a territory and increases the traffic to be handled."
"On the same principle, I think the West, and also the Senate Committee on Waterways, to which I belong, should not take sides in a dispute now on in New York between the upstate proponents of a St. Lawrence deep waterway, and the down-state proponents of a Hudson River deep waterway.
Eventually we shall probably have both canals; meanwhile, let us be friendly to both."
"We are awaiting completion of engineers' reports that will prepare the way for important controlling works that will create a constant high level on the lakes needed for navigation without interfering with the diversion by Chicago of 10,000 cubic feet per second for sewage disposal. We hope to harmonize the groups which have been mutually hostile."

SENATE GETS BILL TO ENFORCE ANTINEPOTISM AMENDMENT

Five St. Louis Representatives Vote Against Bill; Four Members Absent From House.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 20.—
The antinepotism bill of Representative Gordon Massey of Christian County, establishing enforcement machinery for an antinepo-tism amendment to the Constitution adopted in a special election on Feb. 26, 1924, was passed by the House last night by a vote of 88 to 17. The bill now goes to the Senate. This measure would put the constitutional amendment into force.

The amendment prohibits any State or county official or employe from appointing a relative by blood or marriage, to render service to the State or any political subdivision of the State. Massey's bill provides for filing of charges
by prosecuting attorneys and trial in the courts. The amendment provides forfeiture of office. The bill adds to this a $500 fine or a jail sentence of not more than one year.

When Massey called up the bill for passage several members left the House to avoid going on record on the bill. Among those observed leaving the hall was David Peters, Republican floor leader. He did not vote. St. Louis representatives voting for the bill were Beedle, Forster, Ittel, Moberg, Neill, Papke, Sanford, Schneider, Stephens and Speaker Jones Parker.
Those voting against it were Davidson, Francis, Huber, Goodenough and Riedinger. St. Louis members absent or not voting were Chouteau, Ferris, Moore and Spelman.

MORE VASSAR STUDENTS NOW
COME FROM PRIVATE SCHOOLS

Other Changes of Decade Include Present Registration 4 1/2 Years in Advance.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., March 20.—Ten years have wrought vast changes in the characteristics of Vassar College students, charts prepared by the college officer show. In 1910 a total of 58 per cent of the students prepared for Vassar in public high schools and only 42 per cent in private schools.
By 1920 the public schools were furnishing 35 per cent.

Registration lists in 1916 were closed two and a half years before entrance. Students entering in the classes of 1925 were registered four and a half years in advance.

Quite as extreme changes were found in subjects required for entrance. In 1885 entering students were examined only in algebra, Latin and French. In 1920 five subjects were required and 12 were on the alternative or elective lists.

MONEY FOR JEWELRY

FIRM KEPT IN A BOX

Brothers-in-Law of Bankrupt
Tell How They Saved $6500
—to Acquire Company.

An ambitious young man on a modest salary can save several thousand dollars in no time at all —or scarcely any—and two can live as cheaply as one—almost—it appeared from testimony before Referee Coles yesterday by two relatives and former clerks of Herman Rosenthal, bankrupt jeweler.

Rosenthal was the fourth jeweler to go broke last December as the result of the financial troubles of Jacob Uffland, whose somewhat sudden departure from St. Louis was in striking coincidence with the disclosure that outstanding claims against the National Jewelry Co., of which he was president, amounted to $600,000. Yesterday's witnesses paid $6500 for the Rosenthal concern when it was sold by the referee, and Referee Coles and attorneys are endeavoring to learn where they got the money.

"They Saved the Money."
Both denied that they got it from Rosenthal. Al Rosenberg, brother-in-law of Rosenthal, had saved his in a metal box while he was employed in a cap factory.
Michael Yedlin, cousin of Rosenberg, and brother-in-law of Rosenthal by adoption, had saved his the same way. The only difference was that Yedlin kept his in a safe.

Both were married, but still resided with their parents. Rosenberg paid $5 or $10 a week board and Yedlin paid none. Yedlin estimated his living, exclusive of clothing bills, cost him $5 a week before his marriage, about the same after that, and $30 a month after an addition to his family.

"You are a clerk and not owner of a jewelry establishment. Have saved $5000 to sink in the concern, and still are sponging on your father, who is a working man?"
asked Coles.

Yedlin said he kept the money
at home because he had no faith in banks. He had mentioned a checking account in his name through which he paid bills of the jewelry business. Reminding him of that, the referee asked, "Has anything occurred lately to revive your faith in banks?"
"Oh, these are small accounts," Yedlin said, "you have to pay your bills with checks."

Paid Bills by Check.
"I see," Coles remarked. "You still have no faith in banks, but it is necessary to keep some of the funds of your business in a bank."

Yedlin related that in paying bills through the bank account his custom was to bring the necessary amount of money from his safe, deposit it, and then check it out.
He and Rosenberg said that as partners in the new concern they drew $40 a week salary, the same Rosenthal paid them. Rosenthal had no longer any connection with the business, although he "dropped in" two or three times a week and happened to be there on Feb. 28 to be held up with Yedlin by a robber who, Yedlin said, took $1300 worth of diamonds.

WIND MADE GROVE OF TREES

Clothing Stretched on Limbs—Tax Receipts From Murphysboro Picked Up 50 Miles North.
By the Associated Press.
WEST FRANKFORT, Ill., March 20.—Many wind freaks were reported in Wednesday's tornado.
Murphysboro tax receipts of Wednesday date were picked up at Fairfield, 50 miles northeast.

A barber chair found in a field near here was a mystery, as no barber shop was known to have been in the stricken West Frankfort area. Presumably the chair had been transported through the air from some other town.

A frame building of the West Frankfort water plant was left standing untouched, while large trees on all sides were snapped off or torn up by the roots.

Most of a tin can dump was picked up from one side of the West Frankfort-Benton highway and transferred to the other side.
A grove of trees near here reminded observers of the family wash line because of clothing stretched on the limbs.

FORD ENGINES FOR AIRPLANES

Company Also Plans Large Mooring Mast for Dirigibles.
By the Associated Press.
DETROIT, Mich., March 20.—
The Detroit Free Press today quotes
Edsel Ford, president of the Ford Motor Co., as saying that his company will go into the production of airplane engines as soon as experiments now in progress at its laboratories come to a head. Ford also is quoted as saying that construction will be started at once at the Ford air port of the largest disposable mooring mast in the world, to be constructed at a cost of $75,000, for the mooring of the Shenandoah and Los Angeles or any other craft of similar or even greater size.

The Ford Motor Co. is not considering the manufacture of complete planes, but is interested financially in a Detroit airplane company now building planes, and in a Detroit organization which Ford is quoted as saying soon will place the first metal-clad lighter-than-air ship in the air. The mooring mast will be 201 feet high, 26 feet higher than the mast at Lakehurst, N. J. A fire-passenger elevator, completely inclosed,

will run to a height of 176 feet.
Beyond that, leading to the operating platform, is an inclosed stairway.

ESTRANGED PAIR FOUND SHOT TO DEATH ON STREET

Bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Litherbury Discovered on Sidewalk, Revolver Between Them.

NOT KNOWN WHICH DID THE SHOOTING

Had Been Separated for Week—Were Heard Quarreling Few Minutes Before Shots Were Fired.

Dead from bullet wounds and with a revolver containing five empty shells lying between them, Claude Litherbury, 41, a bartender in a saloon at 5013 Delmar boulevard, and his wife, Rose, 41, were found on the sidewalk in front of 719 North Euclid avenue, at 9:45 o'clock last night. The couple had been separated a week and Mrs. Litherbury is reported to have threatened to kill her husband. They had lived at 735A North Euclid, and a letter, written by Mrs. Litherbury and torn to bits, was found in a waste basket in the apartment. It was addressed to a relative in Tennessee and told of the separation. One paragraph read: "Do not be surprised if you learn I killed him and myself. If he is going to stay away, I do not want to live. I have no one to worry about and do not care what becomes of me."

Mrs. Litherbury had been to the saloon where her husband was employed early last evening and was heard to remark that she would kill her husband if he did not return to her. They left the place together and attended a neighborhood picture show. They were arguing when they left the show at 9:35 o'clock, and at Delmar and Euclid passed Patrolman Harry Parnell, still exchanging angry words.

They had gone half a block north when Patrolman Parnell heard five shots. He ran to the scene and found them both unconscious and dying. Litherbury had been shot three times, in the left breast and abdomen. His wife was shot through the heart. All the wounds were powder burned. There were no witnesses, and whether the woman did the shooting or it was done by the man is problematical. The bodies were removed to the morgue.

Litherbury had been arrested 11 times on various charges, and was once fined $200 for destruction of property. Mrs. Litherbury was known to the police through having been arrested four times. When they separated, the police report, Litherbury went to live with another woman.

SENTENCE OF FIVE YEARS FOR YOUTH WHO SHOT ANOTHER

Edward Burleson Convicted of Assault on Thomas Murray Last December.

Edward Burleson, 21 years old, 4104 Turner avenue, convicted in Circuit Judge Taylor's Court yesterday of assault to kill without malice was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary. Burleson shot and seriously wounded Thomas Murray, 29 years old, 5727 Geraldine avenue, in a movie theater at Grand boulevard and Florissant avenue on the night of Dec. 17 last, after Murray had demanded that Burleson return $55 which he claimed was owed him.

Murray testified that he and Burleson had been friendly and that he loaned the money from time to time to help Burleson when the latter was out of a job. Burleson testified that he had heard Murray threaten to "get him" if he didn't return the money and he thought he was acting in self-defense when he fired the shot.

NOT SO BLACK AS PAINTED

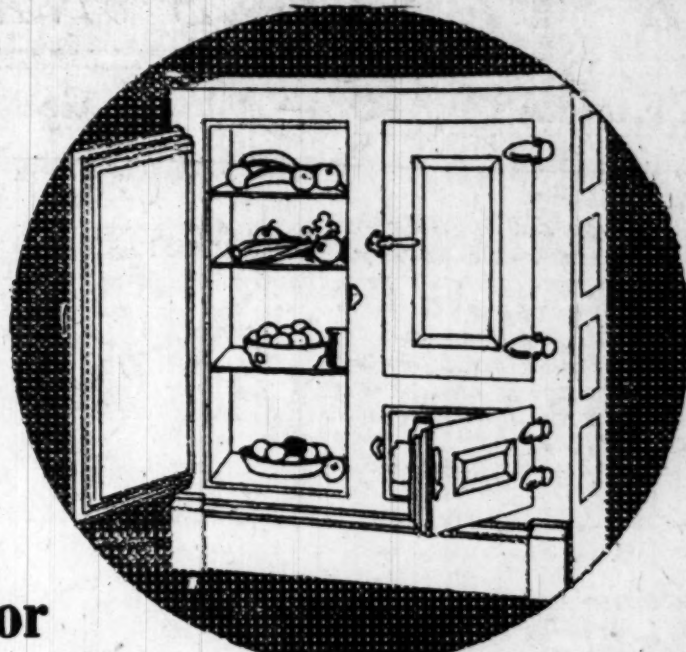

Farmers Glad to See Crows When Worms Get Into Wheat.

FAIRVIEW, Ok.—Crows are thought to be doing a good turn for farmers in Major County. After the first few days of recent sunshine farmers noticed that their wheat was turning a yellowish-brown. They found worms eating the wheat blades. The worms are about the size of a broom straw in diameter and about an inch long. They start at the top of the blade and eat down to the root. In the evening the worms burrow down in the dust, where they remain for the night.

Their presence in a field is shown by brown patches among the green. After an extensive fight to exterminate the crows, it appears that they may redeem themselves by eating the worms. Huge flocks of the birds are on the wheat fields and Major County farmers believe the crows will save their wheat.

Stepson Found After 20 Years. MILFORD, Neb.—A 29-year search was ended when Mrs. Frank Brandt of El Reno, Ok., identified Frank Riser, a farmer, living near here, as her missing stepson. Frank Riser was placed in the Nebraska Children's Home in Omaha years ago and was adopted by J. B. Riser, formerly of O'Neill, Neb.

BUSH BLANKS DODGERS FOR THREE INNINGS, BUT BROWNS LOSE, 6-5

Zack Wheat Gets Only Safety Off Former Yankee

Joe Giard and George Blacholder Pounded, Brown and Cox Hitting Homers.

FINAL GAME SATURDAY

Joe Evans Drives Ball Over the Fence—Leo Dixon Makes Favorable Impression.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TARPON SPRINGS, Fla., March 20.—Joe Bush, star right-hand pitcher, yesterday hurled three clean hitless innings of ball against the Brooklyn crowd and Zack Wheat was the only visiting player who was able to get a hit, a single to right field. Joe then retired from the game, donned his street clothes and will feel the need for exercise ride out to the golf course.

The remainder of the story does not furnish any thrills for the home folks in St. Louis because the two pitchers who followed Bush on the mound failed to pitch the same article of ball. Joe Giard and George Blacholder were touched for re-sounding wallops at most inopportune times, the result being Brooklyn's victory over the Browns, 6 to 2.

Giard's Control. The husky left-hander got as far as two down in the sixth when he suddenly lost control and what happened to him thereafter was sad indeed. He passed a couple of the Dodgers and then with the bases filled Eddie Brown, the big outfielder, cracked a four-bag punch over the fence, giving Brooklyn a total of four runs.

George Blacholder struggled through the seventh safely, but he had a lot of trouble in the eighth. Harry Rice moved the way for one of the runs by making a very wild throw to first base and Dick Cox, a chubby little fellow who appears to have won himself a permanent berth in the Brooklyn outfield, just stepped up to the plate and drove the ball over the left-field boards for a homer, giving the Dodgers another pair of runs, just enough to win the old ball game.

Missouri's team receives recognition as one of the best-balanced among 10 entered for the meet.

CENTRAL A. A. U. MEET TO BE HELD TONIGHT

CHICAGO, March 20.—Athletes of national and international prominence, some of the members of the American Olympic team, will compete here tonight in the Central A. A. U. indoor track and field championships.

Joie Ray, Illinois A. C. ace, will attempt to lower his world mark of 1:22.5 in the 1000-yard run and will run in the 17-8 mile relay.

Harold Osborne of the I. A. C. holder of the world's indoor and outdoor records in the running high jump, will compete in his specialty and also in the standing high and broad jumps.

The struggle for team honors is expected to resolve itself into a conflict between the Illinois A. C. and the Chicago A. A.

How to Play B-I-L-L-I-A-R-D-S

By CHAS. C. PETERSON

This is the fifth of a series of instructive articles by Charles C. Peterson, fancy shot expert, designed to help the amateur billiard player to improve his game.

BRIDGE FOR SPREAD DRAW SHOTS.

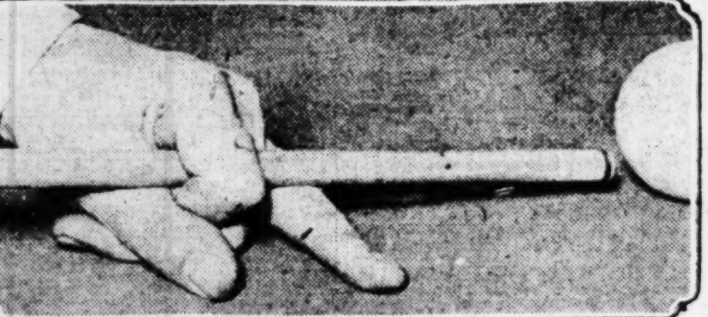

This bridge, as shown in the accompanying illustration, is essentially the same as the orthodox tripod bridge except for the position of the second or middle finger.

In this case, wherein the purpose is to strike the object ball below center, it is necessary to pull the second finger under the base of the thumb.

Thus, the cue is brought lower. The entire bridge is not as low as the "first" draw bridge.

The purpose of the bridge illustrated here is to affect a draw measure on the cue ball and at the same time impart drive to the object ball.

For that reason, a longer

on the bag for the want of a little help from a team-mate.

Evans His Home Run. Old reliable Joe Evans led off in the second with a home run over the left field fence. Tony Rego, who started behind the plate, drew a pass and Bennett sacrificed. Walter Gerber walked a dandy double to left center, scoring Rego.

Herschel Bennett walked into one of Bush's fast ones in the fourth and a double to right center was the result. Bennett took third on an infield out and chased home on a short wild pitch. Kenny Williams, who yesterday was caught speeding and pinched by a State copper, hit a double to right drive the ball over the left-field boards for a homer, giving the Dodgers another pair of runs, just enough to win the old ball game.

Rhem Gives Only One Base on Balls In 9-Inning Game

Young Right-Hander Touched for 15 Hits, but His Control Pleases Cardinals.

STOCKTON, Cal., March 20.—In spite of the fact the Oakland (Pacific Coast League) club nipped him for 15 base hits yesterday, C. Flint Rhem, the youthful right-hander on whom the Cardinals are depending for some pitching strength this season, pitched what was considered an unusually good game.

It was Rhem's best showing of the season. He permitted only one base on balls, has been Rhem's weakness, failure to locate the plate, and the one free ticket he issued was of an intentional nature.

Rhem went the entire route of nine innings, and the Cardinals won, 6 to 4. He pitched the game at his own request, even though he had worked four innings the day previous against the Sacramento club.

Again a Staff Prospect. Because of the wonderful record he had made as a member of the Fort Smith (Western Association) club last year, when he earned the reputation of being the strikeout king of all organized baseball, Rhem was expected to prove a big pitching help to the Cardinals this season.

Manager Branch Rickey has maintained all along that Rhem has a world of "stuff," but in his early tests this year he has been unable to control his pitches. This somewhat nettled Rhem, and so after making an indifferent showing against the Senators on Tuesday, he asked permission to work yesterday.

"My arm feels good again," he said, "and I think if I get more work I can get that ball over the plate."

Rhem put 'em over and the Oaks soaked 'em back—15 times. But, in spite of that number of blows including four doubles, the Oaklanders scored only four runs, and the pleasing part of Rhem's performance was the fact that he gave only one base on balls.

This came in the ninth inning, after two were out and Buzz Arlett, the home-run king of the Coast League, at bat, with a runner on the sacks.

One Pass Intentional. The Cards were two runs to the good, but a home-run sock by Arlett would have tied up the game, and Rhem refused to give Arlett a good ball to hit. As a result, the Oak outfielder drew the lone pass off Rhem, and Louis Giono, the former Cleveland first-sacker, ended the game by forcing Arlett at second.

As a result of Rhem's ability to locate the plate, even though being rounded for 15 hits, Cardinal stock has soared. It means that Rhem will be again counted upon as one of Rickey's possible "Big Four" pitchers.

Thievenow Gets Two Hits. Next in importance to Rhem's showing was the continued batting spree of Tommy Thievenow. Although the Cardinals got only six hits off George Bebler and Art Delaney, the former Cardinal, Thievenow picked two of the half-dozen hits. One was a double. This gives Tom a total of 13 hits in his last four ball games. That's pretty good for a fellow who was being counted out of a job because of his weak hitting.

Terry Is Victor Over Goldberg. Lou Terry of the South Broadway A. C. was awarded the judges' decision over Eddie Goldberg of the National A. A. after a three-round amateur bout at the South Broadway club last night. Judges Seneca Taylor and Robert W. Hall said they gave the verdict to Terry because Goldberg, though having the better of the fighting, did too much holding. A return match between the two featherweights will be one of the features of the next show at the S. B. A. C., April 9.

There were three knockouts in the 10 bouts on the program last night.

Stutts Will Be Offered Mount On Quatrain in Kentucky Derby

Owner of Louisiana Derby Winner Gave Clever Rider $2500 Fee for Victory at New Orleans—Jockey's Contract-holder Not Likely to Send Candidate to Post.

NEW ORLEANS, March 20.—Owner Frederick Johnson announced this morning that he would ship back his crack colt, Quatrain, to his farm, near Lexington, Ky., on Saturday.

The colt will be rested up at the Johnson farm until Trainer Harmon gets the word from Johnson to start getting the colt ready for the races.

Prior to the running of the fourth renewal of the Louisiana Derby, Johnson nominated the son of Omar Khayyam—Bonnie Mary, for the $50,000 Preakness, to be contested at Pimlico before the running of the Kentucky Derby. Quatrain, however, will be pointed for the latter event. He is conceded by horsemen here as being a better horse than Black Gold and, therefore, more than likely to win this classic.

During his winter racing here Quatrain accounted for approximately $50,000 in purses, capturing the New Orleans Handicap, which was worth over $2,000 net to the winner, the Derby which brought an additional $17,300, and the purses of four other races which he won. In his only other start, a sprint event in which Adolphus and Elsas headed him to the wire, Quatrain earned $100. He was third in this event.

Jockey Harold ("Red") Stutts gave Quatrain a clever ride in the Derby, and while Owner Johnson contends that Eddie Legere is a good jockey, but off form just now, he will use Stutts in the Kentucky Derby if Montfort Jones doesn't start a colt in the event. Stutts is under contract to Jones.

Stutts practically won the Derby at the first turn. Heupel on Brave Bob, heavily played second choice, tried to carry Quatrain out, but Stutts gave him a mount a tap with the bat and getting close to the rail. Once in front Quatrain won in a common canter, no horse getting within two lengths of him after the half-mile sprint event in which Adolphus and

FAMOUS ENGLISH HORSE, 30 YEARS OLD, DEAD

By the Associated Press. BUENOS AIRES, March 20.—The famous stallion Cyllene, 33 years old and one of the most celebrated sires of modern times died yesterday at the Argentine stud farm Ojo Del Agua. Cyllene was an English paid Stutts $2500 for winning with Quatrain.

The Audley Farm stable (Montfort Jones) has only one entry in the Derby, Fast Mail. He is quoted at 100 to 1, and it is thought extremely unlikely he will be sent to the post, thus releasing Stutts to ride Quatrain.

thoroughbred and was purchased in 1903 for a sum variously estimated at $100,000 to $125,000. Mrs. Chevalier, who owned the Ojo Del Agua stud, was the buyer.

Cyllene established a record which it would be difficult to beat. Four of his sons won the English Derby, and three of which he was the grand sire followed suit. Three others from among his numerous offspring won the Argentine Derby, in addition to many of the richest prizes on the English and Argentine turf.

A Cherry Punch

Two cupsful of sugar add four cupsful of water and the strained rind of three lemons and two oranges. Set over fire and stir until it boils; let boil five minutes; then strain. When cool add the juice of six lemons and three oranges and either the strained juice from a can of red cherries or cherry syrup to taste. A half cupful of pineapple syrup may be added. When ready to serve, add two quarts of apollinaris or any preferred mineral water. Plain water may be used. Put into the punch bowl with a piece of ice and scatter candied cherries over the top. If syrups are used and it is not convenient to mix them at home, you may be able to purchase the small quantity you require at a soda counter.

In making any punch it should be tasted, and juices and flavorings added gradually until satisfactory to taste.

LOVE ME, LOVE MY DOG.

It is only the very rich who can afford, these days, to dictate to their domestic staffs. Most of us are willing enough to do what the servants want us to do, provided only they'll stay on a little while longer.

But with the wealthier classes it's different. As witness this: Mrs. Midas was seated in her drawing-room. She touched the bell for the new butler. A pompous individual entered.

"You rang, madam?" he inquired.

"I did, Meadows," said the mistress. "The second maid is sick so I wish you this afternoon to take Fifi for a two-hour walk."

Fifi, it is almost unnecessary to state, was a dog.

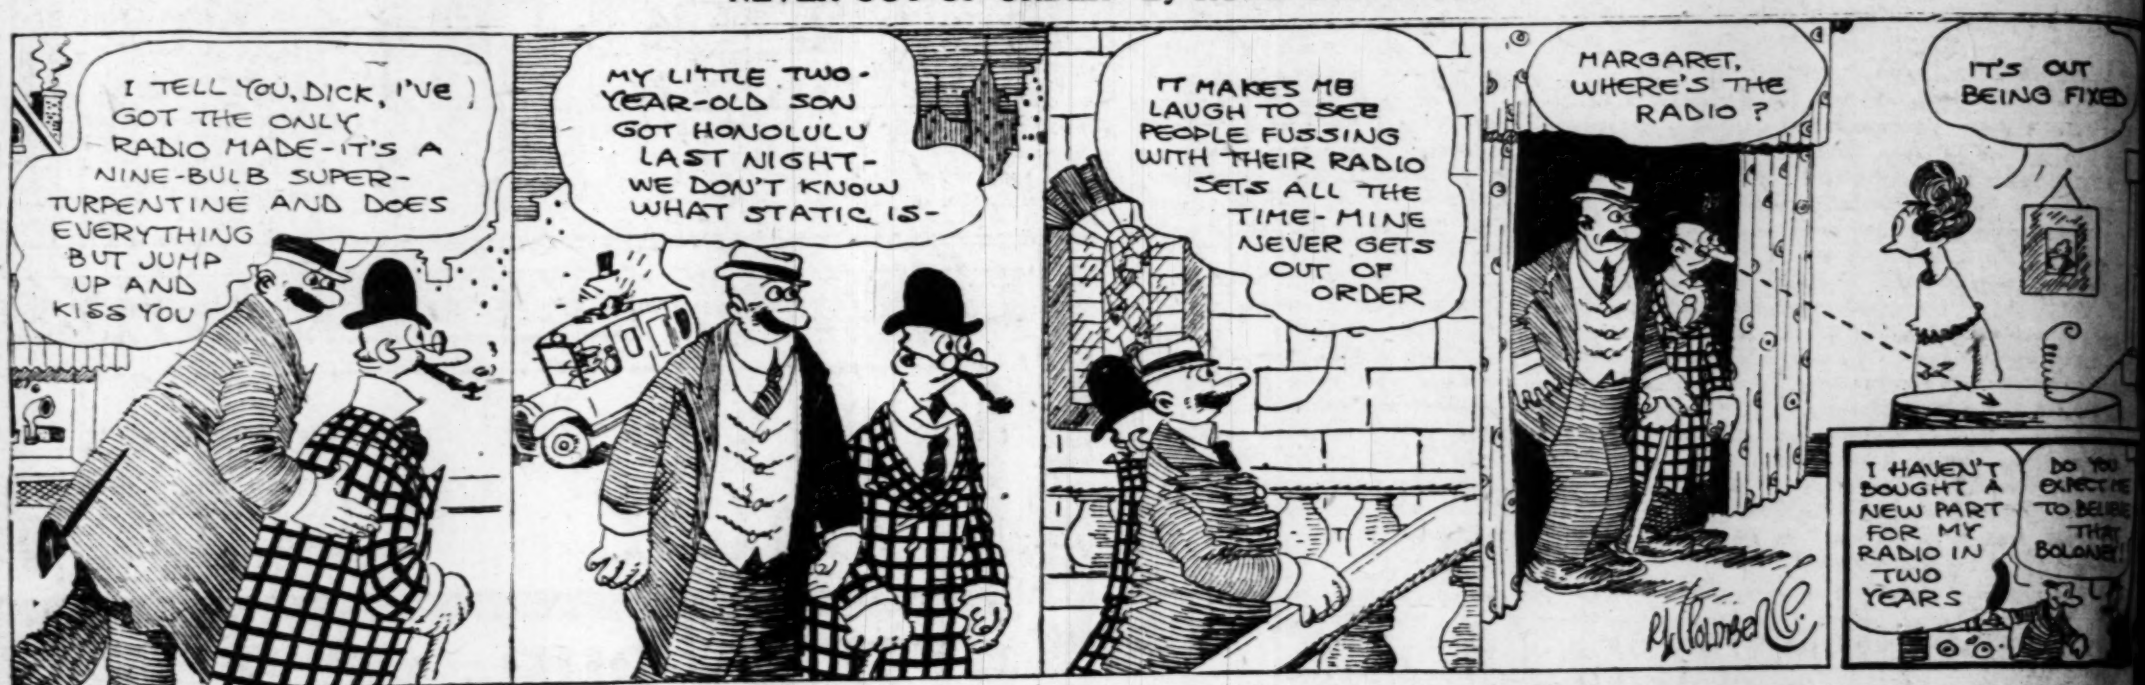

The butler drew himself up to his full height.

"But madam," he said, "I am practically a stranger to Fifi. I am afraid Fifi will not follow me."

"Then, Meadows, you must follow Fifi."

DR. BRIGGS IS FOUND GUILTY AND LICENSE IS REVOKED

Board Finds He Aided in Preparation and Sale of Fraudulent Credentials and Medical Diplomas.

MUST CLOSE OR REORGANIZE SCHOOL

Revocation to Stand Until He Takes Such Action—Other Cases Continued to March 30.

The Missouri State Board of Health today found Dr. Waldo Briggs, president and dean of the St. Louis College of Physicians and Surgeons, guilty of assisting in the preparation and sale of fraudulent credentials and medical diplomas, and by a unanimous vote of the four members present revoked his license to practice medicine and surgery in the State of Missouri.

The revocation is for the period of time until Dr. Briggs shall close permanently the St. Louis College of Physicians & Surgeons, or shall cause that school to be reorganized and placed on a Class A basis. It has been rated as a Class C school and its graduates were not entitled to examination for licenses by the Missouri State Board of Health.

Dr. Briggs was licensed to practice medicine in the State of Missouri Sept. 26, 1934. He is a member of the St. Louis Medical Society and of the American Medical Association, in good standing.

Dr. Briggs and 59 other Missouri doctors were cited to appear before the State Board of Health in St. Louis to show cause why their licenses, issued in this State, should not be revoked for unprofessional conduct of one kind or another. The charge against Dr. Briggs was that he was of bad moral character. The hearing began here last Monday in the Health Department offices in the Municipal Court Building and the case of Dr. Briggs was called first.

While this case was in progress Dr. Otto C. Hanser of St. Louis, one of the doctors cited, was granted a temporary injunction by the Circuit Court, which restrained the State Board from placing him on trial. This injunction is returnable next Tuesday, and because of this litigation, the State Board has continued the cases against the other doctors to March 30.

The Ethics Committee of the St. Louis Medical Society was not represented at the trial of Dr. Briggs, nor was the society otherwise represented, although the Ethics Committee, at the time when the charges were first published against Dr. Briggs, was instructed to make an investigation of any members charged with unprofessional conduct. A regular meeting of the society will be held Tuesday night.

Members of the State Board who were present and voted to revoke the license of Dr. Briggs were: Dr. Emmett F. North, president; T. H. Wilcox, Bowling Green; J. R. McVay, Kansas City, and James Stewart, St. Louis, secretary. Dr. T. A. Son of Bonne Terre was absent.

The text of the board's decision follows: "The defendant, Dr. Waldo Briggs, having been heretofore charged by written complaint filed with the State Board of Health of Missouri as an individual of bad moral character in this, that for a long time he has participated in the sale of medical credentials, falsifying records, assisting in the preparation and sale of false and fraudulent credentials and medical diplomas purporting to evidence qualifications to practice medicine and surgery; that in his activities in connection with the sale of such degrees and medical diplomas he had been in business and associating with one Robert Adcox, known as the "clearing house" of the Medical Diploma Mill Ring, and that he has accepted large sums of money from the said Dr. Robert Adcox in exchange for literary diplomas and degrees, and the cause having been called for hearing on the sixteenth day of March, 1935, at the office of the City Health Commissioner in the Municipal Court Building in the city of St. Louis, and, after hearing all the evidence and the argument of
